From papers in his clothes, the dead man was tentatively identified as Joseph Brokan, aged about 30, from West Virginia. He was shot through the heart.

Paul was absolved of all blame in the killing by Dr. L. S. Strawn, a deputy coroner.

PRESIDENT DENOUNCES U. S. TENDENCY TO MAKE HEROES OF GANGSTERS

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—President Hoover today roundly denounced the sentimentalism seemingly prevalent with so many Americans which makes popular heroes out of gangsters and other criminals. In its place, he asserted, there should be a sentimentalism that makes a popular hero of the policeman for the courage and devotion he shows in protection of our citizens."

His latest observations on crime came in the course of a radio greeting from the cabinet room of the White House to the 38th annual convention of the International Association of Police Chiefs in St. Petersburg, Fla.

With proper backing of public opinion and full support of the proper authorities, Mr. Hoover said he was convinced the ponce of the nation could drive the gangster out of organized society.

The president pointed out that so long as criminals can go about their evil ways with the "smug" assurance that they can defeat the law," there will be a constant discouragement imposed upon the police in full performance of their instinctive duties.

"I wonder at times," that they maintain the vigilance and courage they do against the odds with which they have to attend," he said.

Mr. Hoover stressed the major responsibility resting upon the shoulder of American chiefs of police, particularly in these times of highly organized disorder. He conceded that in not a few communities the police have been subjected to criticism, but no regarded such criticisms as arising from the "exception and not the rule in ponce conduct."

"The day will come," Mr. Hoover said confidently, "when the moral forces of every community will rally to your support in the fight against crime everywhere."

Cornwallis-Washington Kin Meet At Valley Forge

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12—Any slight trace of rancor left between England and the United States as a result of the Revolutionary war was at an end today.

Lord Cornwallis, lineal descendant of the general of the same name who surrendered to George Washington at Yorktown, yesterday met Washington's great-grand-nephew W. Sheldon Washington, at Valley Forge, cementing cordial relations between England and the United States as they stood before the first president's headquarters on the historic battleground.

The event was the highlight of the pilgrimage of 130 Masons to Valley Forge in commemoration of the 200th anniversary of the founding of the Pennsylvania grand lodge. Cornwallis is right worshipful grand master of the United lodge of England.

Next Saturday night Lord Cornwallis will go to Yorktown to attend the pageant celebrating the surrender of his ancestor to General Washington. Incidentally, it is perfectly all right with the visiting nobleman for a portrayal of that surrender as a part of the pageant.

Credit Extension For Germany And Austria Arranged

Directors Of Bank Of International Settlements Announces Decision Today

ENGLAND SWEDEN BASIS PERPLEXES

Germany Given Extra Three Months To Pay $100,000,000 Credit

By FREDERIC K. ABBOT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BASLE, Switzerland, Oct. 12—Directors of the Bank of International Settlements at their regular monthly meeting here today decided to prolong for another three months the $100,000,000 credit extended to Germany. The credit was due to be repaid on November 1.

In addition, the directors agreed to extend for three months also the bank's share of the international credit granted to Austria. The Austrian credit totalled approximately $20,000,000, of which the bank's share is approximately $12,000,000.

The Austrian credit was due for repayment on October 16. The bank's prolongation decision contained a clause providing for further negotiations with England, which holds the balance of the credit, for extension of her share.

Directors Puzzled.

"Continual changes in the financial situation," the directors declared in a formal statement, "preclude extension of more than three months at the present time."

In addition to the credit extensions, the chief problem facing directors of the B. I. S. was the finding of a basis for continued participation of England and Sweden. Since all members originally participated in the bank on a gold basis, the institution's charter does not provide for the extraordinary situation presented when England and Sweden abandoned the gold standard.

LONDON, Oct. 12—Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald today celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday by going to Seaham Harbor to open his own campaign for re-election to the House of Commons.

His Daughter, Ishbel, preceeded him last week, and together they will stump the constituency, appealing for the return of the Prime Minister to Parliament to continue as head of the National Government in the face of the refusal of the local Labor Party to retain him as their candidate.

Should All Unite

MacDonald is standing as a Laborite, but on the platform of the Conservative-Liberal-Laborite coalition, asking that the government be given a free hand to deal with national problems.

"This is no time for party squabbles," the Prime Minister said as he left London.

"Everybody should unite to extricate the country from economic and financial difficulties.

"That is too big a task for one party working alone, but I am sure that the national government will be returned and can achieve its objective.

Chinese May Resort To Arms Says President

League Must Bring Japan To Senses Or China Will Have To Act

JAPAN RESENTFUL OF INTERVENTION

League Of Nations And U. S. Seek To Bring Peaceful Settlement

By TED THACKERAY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

SHANGHAI, Oct. 12.—China is prepared to resort to war if her demands upon Japan with reference to the Manchurian occupation are not met, Chiang Kai-Shek, President of the Chinese Nationalist Government declared in a speech at Nanking today.

"China respects the league covenant and the Kellogg Peace Pact," said the generalissimo-president of the republic, "but if the league and the powers that signed the Kellogg treaty fail to bring Japan to her senses and uphold their sacred duty China will not hesitate to act.

"We shall make the supreme sacrifice of participating the country for half a century by going to war to uphold the dignity and sacred ities of internationl agreements drawn up to safeguard world peace.

"China's patience has been tested to the last degree. If the league fails at a peaceful solution and is unable to induce Japan to withdraw her troops then China must take the matter in her own hands."

Chiang Kai-Shek added that he hoped the League of Nations council, at its session tomorrow, will initiate measures that will bring about peace and thus prevent this "almost inevitable war."

He hoped, further, he said, that the League would point out to Japan how seriously she had erred in refusing to abide by previous League decisions and by occupying Chinese territory without justifiable grounds.

Last Hope For Peace

Beiping, Oct. 12—Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, governor of Manchuria, told the International News Service tonight that the action to be taken by the League of Nations council at Geneva tomorrow, and America's assistance, constitute China's "last hope" of a peaceful settlement with Japan.

Chang was deeply pessimistic over the situation created by China's last two notes and the Japanese reply, refusing to agree to the demand for evacuation of non-treaty territory in Manchuria, prior to negotiations for settlement of outstanding issues.

Asked about rumors that he might resign the governorship of Manchuria Chang declared even if he eventually took that step he certainly would not retire until the Manchurian controversy was settled, despite Japan's known opposition to him.

Correspondent Makes Journey In Solitary State Through "No Man's Land", Manchuria

By EDWARD HUNTER
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service)

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Oct. 12.—Traveling in solitary state through the "no man's land" of Manchuria, I arrived here tonight from Peiping to confront a Chinese populance despairing that Japan would ever release its hold upon this rich and often fought for province of the Chinese Republic.

It was a journey unlike this correspondent had ever made before and one such as few ever may make again. During the entire 300-mile ride from the old Chinese capital to the principal city of Manchuria, until a few weeks ago a rich and thriving Metropolis, I was the sole passenger in any of the first or second class compartments.

Continued bandit depredations and the threat of genuine war overhanging Manchuria were responsible for my privacy, of a sort usually enjoyed only by railroad presidents or kings.

It was a journey made without regard to time-table schedule. Stops and starts were made solely in accord with the situation existing at the time.

Through stretches of Manchuria infested by bandit hordes, the train sped at a mile-a-minute clip, while untended farms and deserted villages raced by the windows.

In other sections, utmost caution prevailed and the train proceeded at a snail's pace. On several occasions, lengthy halts were made while

Committees Are Working On Food Donation Project

Gifts Of Food To Jameson Memorial Hospital Will Be Collected Soon

Just a little more than a week remains before the arrival of the two food donation days set aside by the Jameson Hospital Aide society for the purpose of securing gifts of fruits and vegetables for the Jameson Memorial hospital.

Friday and Saturday, October 23 and 24 are to be donation days this year. Mrs. B. F. Butler is chairman of the county committees, the members of which are located in each church and grange. Mrs. Fred Rentz is city chairman and has aids in the various churches. These chairmen, their assistants and aids are working hard to make this movement a bounding success.

People of Lawrence county and New Castle who wish to give something to the hospital, such as canned fruits, jellies, preserves, baskets or bags of vegetables, are asked to get in touch with the person in charge of the donation day collection at their church or grange hall.

ian dispute, it was stated authoritatively today.

This statement was made immediately after a special meeting of the cabinet to consider the Manchurian situation.

The government, it was stated, will continue to insist upon settlement of the controversy through direct negotiation with China believing this method offers the better prospects of success.

"Interference by the United States or the League would be regrettable" said an official. "It would be certain to defeat its own purpose by forcing the Japanese public solidly to support Jingoists and militarists here.

Japan Gives Warning

"The world is unable to bend Japan's head to China. Such attempts will have serious consequences."

According to official information received here, Japanese troops were engaged this afternoon in a sharp encounter with 1,000 bandits at Hsinglungtein, near Mukden. Japanese soldiers encountered the brigands after they had launched a marauding campaign in the Hsinglungtein district.

A Japanese scout plane flying over the Manchurian "war zone" reported sighting a Chinese autonomist army recruited in Honan Province marching toward Tsitsihar, Capital of Heilungkiang Province, Manchuria.

U. S. Seeks Settlement

(International News Service)

Washington, Oct. 12.—The United State is in complete sympathy toward direct negotiations between Japan and China for a settlement of the Manchurian dispute, it was stated on reliable authority today.

The important thing, from this governor's viewpoint, is that a settlement should be reached as speedily as possible, and by peaceful means, rather than by war.

Taking cognizance of press dispatches from Japan, indicating resentment there over American and League of Nation's "interference" in the Sino-Japanese crisis, authoritative circles here pointed out that no appreciable progress toward a settlement is apparent at present. On the contrary, each day's development in Manchuria indicate aggravation of the situation.

Seek Peaceful Settlement

This government insists that the peace-enforcing machinery of the League of Nations, the Kellogg Pact and the 9-Power Treaty be invoked to compel the Chinese and Japanese to accept a peaceful settlement

This government disclaims any desire to dictate the terms of settlement between Japan and China, so long as the terms thereof do not infringe the guarantee for the integrity of China, contained in the 9-Power Treaty signed in Washington in 1922.

Discuss Raising Of Relief Fund

City Employes May Be Asked To Donate Day's Wage

During councilmanic meeting at the City Hall today Mayor William H. Gillespie called attention to the fact that the mayor's relief committee had been organized and James K. Love is chairman. The question of raising money with which to aid the needy this winter was brought up by the mayor.

"Is there any way we can suggest that city employes having regular work give a day's wages each month to the committee?" asked the mayor, who added that Louis McClung was the treasurer last year.

"Are the school teachers going to do the same thing?" asked Councilman Treser.

"They are to take care of the school children," the mayor responded.

Council agreed that the city could not adopt any compulsory action to have the city employes, working every day, subscribe to a fund monthly.

No final action was taken, but council indicated they believed a plan will be worked out whereby the directors of each department will suggest regular employes give a day's wages each month to the committee for taking care of needy folk. Council will do likewise, they indicated.

The contributions already made will be turned over to the solicitors representing the particular classification of business from the contribution was made.

Those who are at the head of the Community Chest are hoping that each subscriber, who is approached by a team worker during the coming week, will be able to renew or to increase his pledge made last year. Many of the regular Chest subscribers, givers who made their payments regularly last year, are now out of employment, and it becomes all the more incumbent upon those who can, to "give this year as never before."

Mrs. Grace Phillips Johnson, president of the Community Chest is extremely grateful to those who have made their contribution in advance, thus assisting the team workers and saving them much time later in the campaign. Letters or appreciation are being sent to those people and to those who assisted with the parade held Saturday morning.

United States were denied, the German chancellor was faced with a cabinet and parliamentary situation which, it was said, would not permit him to leave Germany.

Such a situation does not obtain now, according to German diplomatic circles here.

Cabinet Formed

Bruening has succeeded in forming a new "concentration" cabinet. Within a few weeks, it is expected the parliamentary situation should be so cleared up, that Bruening might find it possible to come.

With the visit of Premier Laval of France this month, and Grandi next month, a visit from Bruening would complete the trek of statesmen of the European world powers. Prime minister Ramsay MacDonald began the new era of diplomatic intercourse when he came over to pave the way for a successful naval conference at London.

MacDonald May Return

There is a possibility that MacDonald, if he is successful in the English elections, October 27 might take occasion to make another trip here, particularly in view of British interest in the visit of Premier Laval.

The state department's announcement of the impending visit of Grandi, stated that "the president would have been pleased to have received the head of the Italian government (Mussolini) but knowing he could not avail himself at this time of such an invitation, the Secretary of States has expressed to the Italian minister for foreign affairs, (Grandi) the pleasure it would give him if he would visit Washington."

"Only after we have worked out a national program shall we go back to party conferences, and not a moment before."

More than three hundred persons were gathered at the station to cheer the Prime Minister as he boarded his train for the north.

His new appeal for party unity was interpreted as being addressed particularly to conservatives and Liberals who are squabbling over the selection of candidates in some constituencies, thus increasing the possibility of three-cornered contests with the Laborites likely to garner a major share of the votes.

Lusk Ready To Lay New Sewer

24 Inch Storm Sewer May Help Eliminate Water Following Storms

George W. Lusk appeared before council in city hall today and advised solons he had obtained consent from property owners in Wilmington avenue, between Leasure avenue and a point 193 feet north, for the construction through their properties of a 24 inch storm sewer, which it is believed will aid in the elimination of flood waters following storms. Recently J. C. Gilfillan constructed a concrete pipe storm sewer through the Gilfillan and Ellsworth properties. The city paid $1,000 for this job.

Lusk told council he is ready to proceed with the construction under the same sort of an agreement made with Mr. Gilfillan. The information was referred to Frank Miller, city engineer, and it is probable that plans and specifications will be presented at the next meeting of council.

Deaths of the Day

Benjamin S. Bott.

Benjamin Samuel Bott, retired painting contractor, died Saturday, October 10, 1931 about 7 o'clock at his home, 225 Meyer avenue, following an illness. He was widely known and held in highest esteem by all those who knew him.

Forced to retire from an active business life in which he had been eminently successful a number of years ago due to an affection of the eyes, which eventually resulted in the loss of his sight, Mr. Bott remained cheerful in spite of his handicap and retained the deepest interest in the affairs of the community and the world in general. His death will come as a shock to those many friends, who will remember the manner in which he bore up under his misfortune.

Mr. Bott was born in New York City, New York, August 10, 1858, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Bott and was in his 74th year. He had been a resident of this city for many years. He was a member of the Christian Church.

He was a member of the Knights of Malta, in which he had always been quite active, being a past commander of Star of Bethlehem Commandery No. 491 of this city.

He leaves his widow Mrs. Nora M. Bott and one son, Howard F. Bott at home, also a brother, John M. Bott of Lyndhurst, N. J., and a sister, Mrs. Nellie Billingham of Trenton, N. J.

Wampum lost one of its most prominent business men and pioneers of the district Sunday at 5:30 p. m. when Robert McAnlis, aged 64, passed away. Although Mr. McAnlis had been in poor health for the past four months, his death was unexpected.

He was the son of James and Deborah Amy McAnlis, was born in Wampum and had spent his entire life in the community, having conducted a meat market for the past forty three years.

His son, Ira McAnlis, preceded him in death March 23 of this year.

Vogan, New Castle and Miss Clara McAnlis, Wampum; and two half brothers, James and Frank McAnlis of Wampum.

PRESIDENT INSPIRES CONFIDENCE

BY DEVISING, with the approval of prominent bankers, a practical plan for meeting the troubled financial situation, and calling together the leaders of both parties in congress in consultation, the president has changed the whole face of affairs over night, as it were.

Everywhere he has had prompt support. The establishment of a revolving fund of $500,000,000 for aiding in the liquidation of closed banks and for giving credits that the Federal Reserve with its present limitations can not give provides an effective way of meeting a very serious situation.

The new National Credit Corporation, as it is called, has been quickly organized and the methods of procedure have been arranged in detail. The restoration of public confidence and the banishment of needless fear may be described as the net results of the president's action.

FOOTBALL TAKES STAGE

Football has had reason enough of late for being jealous of her traditional rival, baseball, but now that the world's series is a matter of history the gridiron for two months will completely obliterate the diamond.

Some big attendance records were hung up during the recent baseball season; at least they were big for the diamond sport for football has been breaking them ever since bigger and better stadiums were built. But the nation can now begin looking forward to some real sports crowds. Several games during the current season probably will be witnessed by 100,000 spectators.

Baseball suffered little, if at all, from the business depression and unemployment during the late and lamented season and it is not likely that football will suffer more. It seems that for every jobless fellow who hasn't the price of a ticket there are two who now have no jobs to keep them out of the stands. Unemployment works both ways.

The football world misses Knute Rockne and regrets that the old schisms which have deprived the season of some of its most colorful and thrilling contests still maintain. But for all that the season, which is still young, promises many spectacular games and the usual quota of upsets to keep things interesting.

Perhaps it is a good thing for King Baseball's pride that he has gone into hibernation. There is serious doubt whether he could hold his throne these autumn Saturdays against that pretender, Prince Football.

A DIMINISHING SCOURGE

One of the most encouraging reports of the progress of the campaign for health is that of Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman, consulting statistician of a leading insurance company. He has studied the vital statistics in connection with tuberculosis and says that "in the whole recorded history of human disease there is nothing to match the extraordinary and highly significant decline" in this dread affliction of humanity.

In 20 years the death rate from tuberculosis has dropped to less than half. The great cities show up particularly well in the record. And the doctor's conclusions are no less interesting than his figures. He acknowledges that rising wages, shorter working hours and a vast improvement in working conditions are directly responsible for the improvement. He adds a tribute to the work of educational campaigns which have taught the world how to recognize the disease and give it treatment in time, but on the whole, he believes that prosperity gets a large share of the credit for driving out tuberculosis.

This fits with the testimony of the doctors that tuberculosis is in part a consequence of exhaustion, malnutrition and the lack of light and air which attend on bad living and working conditions. It explains why the disease led all the rest in the early years of the industrial era. And it promises that a proper balance of work and play, enough to eat for all and of the right sort of food and the increasing habit of fresh air and sunshine may some day wipe it out altogether.

IN MODERN UTOPIA

Residents of Moscow awakened the other morning to see snow on the ground, the first snow of a Russian winter. The dispatch telling of this adds:

Householders found in the morning paper a decree forbidding all citizens to heat their homes without special authorization by the municipal government.

This is just a sidelight on Utopia. One can go on from that beginning if one will. One can picture a mother, holding her baby under her coat, starting out for the "municipal government." No doubt it is the theory in Moscow that a person can get warm just as easily and much more cheaply by running around from one official to another seeking a permit than by lighting a fire. The only trouble is that every breadline and most other lines at most other bureaus require considerable standing in one spot—often for hours.

There is terror about this dominance of government that we of America are utterly incapable of understanding. Our fathers and our fathers' fathers have enjoyed the independence that comes from individualism. Freedom of a kind unknown to Russia either under czarism or communism has been to us like the air we breathe. We have had it without thinking of it, but the first attempt to take it away from us would result in the stiffest backbones in the history of mankind.

The sharp criticism of a traffic patrolman, the slow movement of a clerk in a county office, a "keep off the grass" sign on a post office lawn, the failure of an effice-holder to answer a letter—and the little pomposities of officialdom chafe us and anger us. If we were told we couldn't light the fire to get the baby warm what an explosion of anger there would be.

"Interesting people" are those who take an interest in us.

Still, you can be thin without being lean. Look at the ham in a sandwich.

Another thing that makes it hard to pay dividends is a million dollar stock issue on a $50,000 business.

Isn't it unfortunate that the only men who realize that battleships are obsolete elected to be writers instead of navy men.

Yes, airplanes will do it all in the next war—if somebody invents one that can crawl in a dugout to mop up after the bombing.

The suspicion is growing that in certain political quarters conspicuous leaders are not so much interested in helping the depression as they are in having the depression help them.

Don't Laugh at Men
They Don't Understand
All Wise Wives Know That

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I'll tell you something, and I think it's the truth.

Men aren't happy with women who have a keen sense of humor. They may love them, but they're afraid of them. They never know when that sharp weapon may turn on the gentleman and make him look ridiculous. . . . They don't like the idea. It curdles their vanity. It makes them feel cheap. And so a marriage that everyone thought would last forever shrivels up and blows mournfully away.

Just last week a famous woman humorist married again. I thing it was her fourth adventure in marriage. Perhaps it was her fifth. I can't be sure of that. . . . But I've seen the reports of her marrying difficulties in the newspapers so often that I know she doesn't stay married. I used to wonder how it happened that a woman with such a keen mind and such a riotous sense of the ridiculous couldn't stay married. . . . But now I think I know the truth—it's the sense of humor that does it!

* * *

After she's been married for a while, after the man she married ceases to be the Magic Prince she half thought he was, she finds funny little things in him that make her laugh. . . . It's a terrible shock to the fellow. He thought he was her ideal. Of course, he knew he wasn't an ideal man at all, but he did think that she thought so. . . . And now he finds her LAUGHING at him.

He's hurt and he's angry. Be begins to suspect her affection. He doesn't believe that a woman can laugh at a man and still love him. It's all right for her to laugh at other people, but how on earth can she laugh at HIM!

He loses his temper and acts like a furious baby. She keeps her temper and thinks he's funny. He is being righteously indignant and his wife thinks it's a joke. . . . What can you do with a woman like that?

* * *

Well, shouldn't a woman have a sense of humor? Certainly she should. But men ought to learn that love and laughter can go happily hand in hand. . . . The women learned that long, long ago. They learned to laugh at the absurdities of men—of fathers, brothers, husbands and even their funny little sons—and still to love them, deeply and sacrificingly and with a sort of tender mockery in their love. They love men even though the men have never troubled to hide their laughter at the expense of women.

Every woman I know understands that men do NOT like to be laughed at, but the men have not learned that there is little contempt in the laughter of women—and no treachery at all.

Are you careless in your table manners

As head of the house you feel your table etiquette should not be criticized by any member of the home circle.

You cannot be bothered and hindered through observing table rules as prescribed by those who would teach you.

If you want to lay your knife or fork from your plate to the table, you think it makes no difference.

If your way is to cut all your meat at one time, what's wrong with it?

If you want to hold a slice of bread flat on your hand while you butter it all at one spreading, why should there be any objections from your family?

If you want to eat in your shirt sleeves and put your forearms on the table why should anyone complain?

If you prefer to cut with your knife what should be separated with a fork, what's wrong with that method?

If you enjoy mixing your food on your plate why should mother and the girls look disgusted.

If you reach instead of waiting to have things passed, isn't it saving someone trouble? But—

Isn't it the part of a gentleman not to embarrass your women folk?

Coolidge Statement Turns Eyes To Hoover Prospects

Former President Believed By Public To Have Emphasized Prospect That Party Will Be Free From Factions When Nomination Is Made

Statements from former President Coolidge indicating that he repudiates all efforts to make him a candidate for the Republican nomination for the presidency next year are widely accepted as evidence that the party will be free from factions in the campaign year. The Coolidge utterance also is interpreted as a call for loyalty to the White House in a time of national emergency.

"There never has been the slightest uncertainty in the minds of those who knew Mr. Coolidge as to his reaction to rumors and suggestions concerning the possibility of his candidacy for the nomination," declares the LEXINGTON LEADER, while the HARTFORD TIMES hold that "his prestige is not diminished by that course," but "it very likely would be is he yielded to temptation to try again a luck that has been phenomenal." The FORT WAYNE NEWS-SENTINEL feels that the statement "should go far to increase the rigidity of many pessimistic backbones and to rally a cheerful attitude of confidence in the government as navigator of the Ship of State in an admittedly annoying squall."

Its significance "as scotching thus early the recently apparent desire of some Republicans to sidetrack President Hoover in the next national convention" is emphasized by the FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM, which, however, calls it "more an adjuration to economy than it is a direction to politicians of his party." The CLEVELAND NEWS believes that "the strength of the Coolidge following—and it is still great—will largely be thrown behind the Hoover movement," and that paper is also convinced that this action "closes the door finally on the possibility of the emergence of a strong opponent at the close of Mr. Hoover's first term." Other papers, which point to the force of the plea against factional action are the MADISON WISCONSIN STATE JOURNAL, the UNIONTOWN HERALD and the PROVIDENCE BULLETIN. The WHEELING INTELLIGENCER believes that "one may sympathize with Mr. Coolidge's sentiments on party loyalty and party discipline, without going the whole distance with him in the matter of supporting men in office."

"It is possible that by his pronouncement he has averted a schism in the Republican party," thinks the ANN ARBOR DAILY NEWS, while the clearing of the situation is observed by the CHATTANOOGA TIMES and the HOUSTON CHRONICLE. The strengthening of President Hoover's position, politically, is attested by the ROCK ISLAND ARGUS, the SIOUX FALLS ARGUS-LEADER, the MANCHESTER UNION and the OSHKOSH NORTHWESTERN.

"There is no doubt," declares the WASHINGTON EVENING STAR, "that Calvin Coolidge's appeal for party solidarity in the coming national campaign will have its effect," while the ROANOKE TIMES feels that the statement "is designed to serve notice on the disaffected element of the party that he will have no hand or part in any revolt against the President's renomination." The COLUMBUS OHIO STATE JOURNAL holds that it was written "to exert what influence is his in behalf of Mr. Hoover." The SOUTH BEND TRIBUNE advises that "he indirectly informs certain members of his party that failure to support a Republican President, who is honestly trying to serve well, is treachery that debases the practitioners and weakens the party and the nation."

"If Coolidge at any time felt tempted to accede to the urgings of ardent but ill advised friends to seek the nomination for himself," remarks the SAVANNAH MORNING NEWS, "the thought has now been completely abandoned. Judging from his declaration, he has been moved to this decision by recognition that such an effort on his part would not only be a rebuking reflection on the present administration and disastrous to the party, but would be an additional factor disturbing the present efforts toward co-operation and confidence as essentials in removing business depression. Mr. Coolidge's announcement is marked by political sagacity and a keen appreciation of conditions as they are."

An appeal to the nation as a whole is recognized by the SPRINGFIELD (MASS.) REPUBLICAN, the JERSEY CITY JOURNAL, the PHILADELPHIA EVENING BULLETIN, the BUFFALO EVENING NEWS and the CONNELLSVILLE DAILY COURIER. The CHICAGO DAILY NEWS says: "Political racketeers who have counted on commercializing the honorable reputation of Calvin Coolidge for their own substantial profit in the coming presidential year ought to have known that the former president never was in the habit of lending himself to the promotion of dubious adventures. Many of Mr. Coolidge's loyal friends and admirers regret his voluntary retirement from public life, but the 'draft Coolidge' movement which of late has been gaining headway in various states, including Illinois, has been promoted mainly by discredited elements in the Republican party or on the bedraggled fringes of that party. The experienced leader whose name they have used so freely has chosen to administer to them a remarkable rebuke while pleading upon the public for united loyal service."

The incident is viewed with a background of doubt as to Republican prospects by the OKLAHOMA CITY TIMES, the SCRANTON TIMES, the AKRON BEACON JOURNAL and the OMAHA WORLD-HERALD. Denial of the possible prospects of Mr. Coolidge as a candidate is made by the LYNCHBURG NEWS, the LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL, the BALTIMORE EVENING SUN and the DAYTON DAILY NEWS. The PORTLAND OREGON JOURNAL concludes: "Mr. Coolidge was always credited with being a canny politician, proof of which was given in his string of elections to prominent offices both in his own state and in the nation, and in the great plurality he received in 1924. His reputation in that regard will not be dimmed by his refusal to become a candidate for the presidency in 1932. Were Mr. Coolidge a candidate he would have a good many things to answer for. While there was great prosperity during his terms in the White House, it was during that time the seeds of the present depression were in great part sown."

LOVE AND BLINDNESS

They say that love is blind. I doubt
This verdict of some grumpy sage.
I'd twist this sentence full about
And say that blindness comes with age.
There's Mistress Mary at the side
Of William, thin and pale and tall,
And finding in him signs of pride,
I vow I cannot see at all.

A month ago, we quite agreed
On what was right and what was wrong,
My words of counsel she would heed.
And then this William came along!
"He's just another male," said I,
"A plain, ungainly youth to me,
An ordinary passer-by!"
"I think he's wonderful!" said she.

I liiked him over once again
And dubiously shook my head.
"He's rather common-place and plain,
With no unusual charms," I said.
Miss Mary's eyes flashed fire, as she
To his defense was quick to spring,
Saying: "He's perfect as can be!
And isn't he a handsome thing?"

"Handsome?" I answered. "Harold that!"
"Yes, handsome!" Mistress Mary said.
Fearing to start an endless spat,
I smiled and merely shook my head.
But here's the difference, I suppose;
Mary's in love, and she can see
A grandeur William never shows
To old, cold, calculating me.

Universal Suspension Of Warship Building To Be Advocated Soon

Difficulty, Says U. S. Navy League, Is That Uncle Sam Will Be Far Behind At End Of Proposed Holiday

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—A world suspension of warship building will be strongly urged during the coming winter.

The state department has intimated four different times that the Washington government is favorable to such a plan, but would prefer to have the offer come from some other country.

It probably will come, in the near future.

England is understood to be preparing to request a five year holiday of the sort suggested. Premier Laval of France, it is reported, will discuss the plan with President Hoover while here the latter part of this month. Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy actually proposed it, in a speech at the last league of Nations meetings. Chairman Borah of the U. S. senate committee on foreign affairs recently indorsed it warmly.

* * *

The idea appears to have much to recommend it.

Warships are expensive, and no one denies that there seldom has been a juncture in history when the world's power had greater need to economize.

"If all of them at once cease the construction of fighting vessels for an agreed period, it would seem that none will gain any advantage.

And yet, argue spokesmen for the Navy League of the United States, this is exactly what will occur. That is to say, all will gain relatively in sea strength at the expense of Uncle Sam, should he and the remainder of them stop building now, simultaneously.'

Provided this difficulty can be overcome, observe the league's spokesmen, they will be in favor of the program.

* * *

According to the Navy League's showing, England, Japan, France and Italy are so thoroughly up-to-date with their warship-building that even though they make no additions or replacements, each will have a tolerably formidable fleet still available at the end of a five year holiday: whereas America's fleet already is so much farther advanced on the road to obsolescence that five years will see a much larger fraction of it past fighting serviceability.

In so saying, the league folk are not referring to vessels in the capital class—the battleship of category.

Under the last naval compact (the Treaty of London) a holiday in the construction of capital craft exists now and will continue until after 1936. As to battleships, America and England are approximately on an equality: the British line-up is slightly stronger than America's but the difference is unimportant.

The present scheme is to extend the holiday to other classes of vessels—cruisers, destroyers, aircraft carriers and submarines especially.

* * *

While the Treaty of London did not provide for a suspension in the construction of these smaller types of men-o'-war, it did limit American, British and Japanese tonnage in all of them, but neither America, England nor Japan has built quite up to the limit. Japan has nearly done so: England has not lagged far behind: America is much behindhand, except in respect to submarines, with which Uncle Sam is better supplied than John Bull, though not so well as Japan and France.

England, parenthetically, for geographical reasons does not like submarine warfare and frequently has tried to have it outlawed but always has failed due to French and Japanese balkiness.

What France and Italy desire is a matter, to be sure, of little direct consequence to American naval experts, further than that the strength of their fleets affects English calculations, which of course do weigh heavily with Washington's strategists in casting up their own reckonings.

* * *

Be all that as it may, the three leading sea powers' respective ratios of naval strength, counting the various tpyes outside the capital class, and averaging them on the basis of present serviceability, works out as follows:

England, 13.1: America 10: Japan, 9.6.

So much more rapid, however, will be the deterioration of America's line-up, because of its greater present average age, than either England's or Japan's according to competent naval authorities, that at the end of a five year figure of replacements, they figure the comparison would be:

England 16: Japan 13, America 10.

Before a naval holiday is declared, the Navy League is clamorous for a rectification of this prospective disparity.

* * *

If economy alone is sought," said a retired admiral who was particular to warn against use of his name, in view of President's Hoover's well-known advocacy of a policy of naval retrenchment, "there are plenty of ways of accomplishing it without reduction in America's sea strength.

'Ten years ago, during the period of my last command, the national investment in the fleet was $850,000,000: in shore stations, $880,000,000.

"Of the fleet at that time vessels representing a $427,000,000 investment, or slightly more than half of the total, were in Pacific waters. Yet on the Pacific coast there were only two stations, and of these Puget Sound was the only one of consequence, Mare Island lacking accommodations for large ships. On the Atlantic coast it was then and still is difficult to find a port from Passamaquaddy Bay to Key West without its naval station."

* * *

"The situation was so ridiculous" continued the admiral, "that a naval board was appointed to weed out the most useless of the number.

"It found even more than I have mentioend. It found naval stations that no naval officer ever had heard of. It found a station on the Great Lake where war vessels have been prohibited, almost immemorially by treaty with Canada. It found—since the World War, bear in mind—one station in the south still engaged in providing timber for wooden frigates.

"And not one naval station did that board succeed in having abandoned. The politicians would not permit it."

Two Racketeers Are Found Dead

Hunt Intensified For Frank McErlane In Chicago—Bitter Rival Found Slain

BOOZE PEDDLER SHOT TO DEATH

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Search for Frank McErlane, known as Chicago's toughest gangster, was intensified today after discovery of the murder of James L. Quigley, 41, his bitter enemy.

Quigley's body was taken from the drainage canal yesterday near Lockport, Ill. There were indications he had been brutally beaten. He had been shot once in the temple and once in the abdomen.

Detectives advanced the theory that Quigley was slain in retaliation for the murder of Edward Fitzgerald, McErlane's bodyguard.

It was believed McErlane himself might be dead as a result of the apparent fresh outbreak in the southside beer territory. Quigley formerly was a partner of McErlane and Edward "Spike" O'Donnell, according to police.

The hunt for McErlane was first instigated last Thursday when his "wife" was found slain.

In addition to the Quigley killing, detectives today probed the fatal shooting of George Wilson, reputed minor booze peddler. His bullet torn body was found when police answered an anonymous telephone tip.

BEE TREE CUTTER PAYS STIFF FINE

HAZLETON, Pa., Oct. 12.—Andrew Dubetsky, Sr., of Weatherly, who located a colony of bees in a tree on the Henry Graff farm in Lowrytown, found that gathering wild honey was a most expensive venture. To get the bees he felled the tree and found it necessary to smoke them into slumbering and in doing so set fire to the woodland.

He was arrested by the landowners and given a hearing before Justice Kistler, of Weatherly, and fined $25 for cutting down the tree, $10 for setting the woodland afire, and $19 costs, with the option of spending 55 days in the county jail or paying the bill. He paid.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

Three Guard Units For Yorktown

Governor And Military Staff Also Going To Celebration From State

CEREMONIES ON OCTOBER 16 TO 19

(From News Bureau)
(State Capital)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 12.—Three units of the Pennsylvania National Guard have been selected to represent the Keystone State at sesqui-centennial in Yorktown, Va., October 16 to 19 inclusive. These units have been selected from the infantry and cavalry branches of the service.

Governor Gifford Pinchot is expected to attend the exercises, at least for part of the time. His present schedule calls for visiting Yorktown on October 19 the same day that President Hoover is to make an address.

The governor will be accompanied by a military staff for his visit to Yorktown. While the custom of gubernatorial military staffs has gone into the discard the governor has chosen eight high officers of the guard to comprise his staff for the occasion.

Officers Selected

The staff will consist of the general officers of the Pennsylvania guard and two cononels who command regiments from which the units have been selected.

Major General W. C. Price, Jr., of Chester, commander of the 28th Division, will be the ranking officer on the staff. Other members selected to make the trip are:

Adjutant General David J. Davis, of Scranton; Brigadier General E. C. Shannon, of Columbia, Lieutenant governor and commander of the 52nd Cavalry Brigade; Brigadier General Edward Martin, of Washington, State Treasurer and commander of the 55th Infantry Brigade; Brigadier General Robert M. Brookfield, of Philadelphia, commander of the 56th Infantry Brigade; Brigadier General William S. McLane, Jr., of Wilkes-Barre, commander of the 53rd Artillery Brigade; Colonel C. Blaine Smathers Grove City, commander of the 112th infantry regiment and Colonel E. J. Stackpole, Jr., of Harrisburg, commander of the 104th cavalry regiment.

Units Selected

The three units of enlisted men are to sail from Baltimore, Md., next Saturday morning. While at Yorktown they are to be quartered on the battlefield reservation with units from some of the other original thirteen states and the regular army.

At the request of officials in charge of the celebration Adjutant General Davis has selected units that have distinctive dress uniforms in addition to the regulation issue.

Members of Troop 1, 104th cavalry, the governor's troop, will appear for the first time in their new dress uniforms. The last legislature granted an appropriation of $5000 for this purpose. Fifty-five men of the troop have been selected to make the trip. Arrangements have been made for the local authorities to supply the mounts for the troop.

The other units selected for the trip are the headquarters company of the 55th Infantry Brigade. Like the governor's troop this unit is located in Harrisburg. There will be forty men from this company make the trip.

The Wayne Rangers of Erie, from the 112th infantry is the third unit picked to represent the state at the celebration. This unit will consist of sixty-five men.

An appropriation of $10,000 is available to pay the expenses of the trip for the governor, his military staff and the National Guard units.

Teachers In State Are Better Paid

Salaries In Pennsylvania Are Higher Than Average For Country As Whole

(Special to The News.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12.—Salaries higher than the average of the country are paid to city school teachers of Pennsylvania, it would appear from a survey just completed by the National Education association.

Studying the salaries paid to teachers in cities of more than 2,500 residents, the association found that for the school year of 1930-31, the median salary received by Pennsylvania teachers was higher than that paid teachers in the country as a whole, both in the elementary and high school fields. Elementary school teachers in the state received an average of $1,561 as against a national average of $1,524. High school teachers of the state were paid an average of $2,119 compared with a national median of $1,991.

Both elementary and high school teachers of Pennsylvania in cities of 30,000 to 100,000 residents were paid higher wages than teachers in such cities of the country as a whole. The average for Keystone state elementary teachers in cities of 100,000 or more was higher than in the average city of this size throughout the country while high school teachers in such cities of the state received slightly lower than the median wage. In cities of 10,000 to 30,000 elementary teachers of the state received more than average but in cities of 2,500 to 10,000 they received less than the average wage. High school teachers in this size city seemed better paid in the state than in the country as a whole.

Famous Speed Flier Injured

Al Williams, Famous Speed Flier Is In Charlotte, N. C. Hospital

LANDS PLANE IN CROWDED FIELD

(International News Service)

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 12.—Al Williams, famous speed and precision flyer, is in a Charlotte hospital today with injuries of undetermined seriousness as the result of a crash here Sunday in the final program of the all southern aircraft pageant.

Williams made a sensational landing when his motor went bad less than two hundred feet above the crowd of 20,000 specators. Crowds on the runway made it impossible for him to bring his plane safely down and he nosed down to a small bank in the midst of hundreds of automobiles. The landing spot was just large enough for him to nose down as the mob dashed from the danger of the falling plane.

The nose of the plane stove into the dirt, Williams jumping from the ship almost as soon as it hit the ground.

State Farmer May Set New Record

Susquehanna County Man Produces Heavy Litter Of Pigs Again This Year

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 12.—Winning a national record in 1929 and leading the state for the second consecutive year in 1930, G. C. Birdsall of Susquehanna stands a good chance of having the heaviest ton litter in Pennsylvania again this year, L. C. Madison, swine extension specialist of the Pennsylvania State College, said today.

Birdsall's 13 pure bred Duroc Jerseys weighed 3038 pounds when they recently finished their six-month feeding period. This is the heaviest ton litter weighed in the state to date.

Last year Birdsall grew the heaviest of the 54 ton litters in the state. Eleven pure bred Duroc Jersey litter mates weighed 3073 pounds at six months of age. In 1929 the Susquehanna county farmer produced the heaviest ton litter in the country when 17 pigs, sired by a pure bred Duroc Jersey, balanced the scales at 3,987 pounds for the half-year weight.

3-From-1 Match Rule Hits An Official Snag

(International News Service)

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—Several district leaders of the ultra-nationalistic "Steel Helmets" have forbidden members from adhering to the belief that three cigarets must not be lighted from one match because "the superstition is of British origin, alien to German thought and ideals."

Any member caught refusing to take a third light will be summarily expelled.

The superstition, nationalist leaders assert, originated in the Boer war. British troops in the frontline trenches at night were allowed to smoke. When the first soldier struck a light the native snipers grabbed their rifles. When the light was passed to the second, the snipers took aim. The third man to and invariably fell dead with a sniper's bullet through his head.

Thus the superstition is of British origin, the nationalists say, and "intolerably disgusting" to a German.

More Powerful Autos Bought

Pennsylvanians Are Purchasing Higher Power Machines Now

MILLION AND HALF AUTOS IN STATE

(From News Bureau)
(State Capital)

HARRISBURG, Oct. 12.—A tendency to purchase more powerful automobiles by Pennsylvania motorists is brought out in the last monthly report of the bureau of motor vehicles. This report showed a decrease in the number of passenger cars registered for the first nine months of this year but the drop in registration fees was less than a dollar a car.

Registration fees are charged on the basis of horsepower. In recent years the tendency has been toward speedier cars with increased horsepower. This change has resulted in higher registration fees being paid by the car owner.

On October 1 there were 1,505,519 passenger cars registered in Pennsylvania. That number was 9254 under the corresponding period of 1930.

Revenue for the registration of these passenger cars amounted to $15,355,749 or only $8798 under the totals for the same months of last year.

The minimum registration fee for a full year is $10. The decline in passenger car revenues despite a drop of more than 9200 machines registered is less than $9000. Officials of the bureau of motor vehicles say the reason for the small decrease is that larger cars are being purchased in Pennsylvania thereby increasing the revenues for road building purposes.

Bandits Holdup Big Restaurant At Canton, Ohio

Twenty-Five Patrons Of Restaurant Frisked Of Valuables In Daring Robbery

BANDITS ESCAPE IN TRAFFIC JAM

(International News Service)

CANTON, O., Oct. 12.—Six bandits, armed with a sub-machine gun, sawed-off shotguns and revolvers, who robbed 25 patrons in a large restaurant two blocks from the city square in broad daylight, today had eluded capture by police here and in Cleveland and Akron.

The bandits marched into the restaurant in single file, sweeping their guns before them. The diners were methodically "frisked" and the restaurant safe was looted before the gang departed.

Jewelry and restaurant receipts were said by police to have swelled the loot to almost $2,000.

A radio cruiser, summoned by an employe who slipped out a backdoor, was halted in a traffic jam as the bandit car escaped.

Charity Requests Are Rigidly Probed

Mercer County Poor Board Finds Many Able To Purchase Supplies Requested

MERCER, Pa., Oct. 12.—Investigation of applications made to Poor Directors in county for assistance under the terms of the law revealed the fact that many of the applicants were able to make purchase of the shoes and stockings requested for their children.

The law provides that if local charity organizations are unable to provide shoes and stockings for children attending school whose parents are unable to buy them, the directors of the poor shall make the purchases "After Investigation". The investigation revealed 40 percent of the applications were made by people able to make the purchase.

It is the intention of the poor directors to continue their investigations in all charity cases. Applications made by people who are able to buy that which they are asking will not benefit them and only takes the time of the officials from worthy cases.

Depression May Bring Brotherhood Back Home Noted Pastor Believes

We Have No Business To Make Our Life A Mere Sordid Struggle For Wealth, He Declares

By DR. HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK
Pastor of Riverside Church, New York City

The present depression affords an opportunity to reflect and thereby make our economic system something other than the "grab bag" it has been.

Our present period of adversity will be worth while if it showed us what our business really is, if it established the fact that economics was a matter of human relationships.

We have no business to make our economic life a mere sordid, competitive struggle for wealth. It is not the business of a Christian minister to be a partisan for special economic theories, but it is our business to say over and over again that economic life is a secred thing, that at bottom it is always a matter of human relationships, and that every sordid and selfish policy registers itself in broken homes, ruined childhood and blasted opportunities. Our economic life really ought to mean an organized endeavor to give all the people a chance at living.

Our newspapers deal too much with moratoriums, the pound sterling and economics.

A hungry child who, when told by her teacher to go home for something to eat, said it was not her turn to eat that day, but her sister's. That is economics—and if this day of adversity cannot make us see that, we are blind.

Adversity may do much to further the brotherhood of man, for in prosperity the cries of the distressed cannot rise above the joyous shouts of those who are well off. In distress we see the truth of the brotherhood of man.

Auto License Renewal Applications Mailed

Benjamin G. Eynon, Commissioner Of Motor Vehicles Issues Warning Today

Postage Stamps Will Not Be Accepted This Year As Payment For Auto Tags

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Oct. 12.—Auto license renewal applications, two million of them, were mailed out today coincidental with a warning issued by Benjamin G. Eynon, commissioner of motor vehicles, that postage stamps will not be accepted this year as payment for 1932 motor vehicle tags.

"Heretofore we have been accepting stamps to cover applications for duplicate certificates of title, registration cards and assignments," Commissioner Eynon said. "We will no longer do so. This means when an application is received with stamps attached for payment rather than check, postoffice money order or cash we will have to return such application."

Warning Issued

Eynon warned against trying to "put one over," by making or forwarding a check to the Department of Revenue when insufficient funds were on deposit to cover the check. He added:

"To do so is a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not more than $100 or imprisonment not to exceed two years, or both. Just because you get the tags and we get the bad check does not mean that you win. Your gain is only a temporary one.

"Here's what happens. When the uncollectible check is returned to the department a photostatic copy is made. A copy is sent to the State Highway Patrol station nearest the home of the maker of the check. The latter is visited by a patrolman. If he can't pay the fee and the fine assessed, the patrolman takes the tags.

"That ties up the motor vehicle until such time as the owner meets the law's requirements. The only exception is in cases where a bank may have been closed by the commonwealth or the federal government. That, however, does not relieve the applicant of paying the fee."

CORRESPONDENT MAKES JOURNEY

the train crew attempted to obtain some indication of what lay ahead. Chinese intuition guided the engineer in deciding whether great speed or intense slowness constituted the greatest strategy.

n this particular case, Oriental cunning triumphed [redacted] at Mukden, [redacted] in safety.

Armored Train Convoy.

As far as Hungtunkun, the illusion of travelling like a voyaging monarch was intensified by the presence of a two-car armored train running ahead as convoy.

Seventy uniformed railway guards with drawn guns travelled aboard the convoy, keeping a steady watch for bandit hordes known to infest the region between Peiping and Hungtunkun.

At Tahushan, we stopped for a seemingly interminable time. Chafing with impatience, I made inquiries of the major domo in charge of the "expedition" into the war zone, and found this halt was due not to fear of attack but to prevent the train from being turned into a refugee haven.

Hundreds of poverty-stricken residents of the Tanushan area, I learned, are fleeing toward Tientsin, fearing they would be overwhelmed by bandits whose continued depredations have demoralized the district.

The trainmen had received word that a huge crowd of refugees would cross the railway line above Tahushan. Had the train been anywhere near, it would have been impossible to keep them from boarding it en masse.

Railway officials pointed out they had no particular objection to filling up the vast stretches of empty seats with pasengers of any sort, provided they had the wherewithal to pay the fare. It was assumed, however, that no more than one out of 100 of the refugees would have funds of any dimensions in his possession, so the wait at Tahushan cheated them out of a free ride and ensured me of privacy all the way to Mukden.

On all of the numerous stops we made en route, I had a chance to gauge the state of mind of the average Manchurian resident. Everywhere there was despair and hopelessness that the Japanese grip on Manchuria would ever be loosened.

For years, peasants, farmers and business men of this rich province had lived in fear that the long-threatened Japanese military invasion of the district would materialize. Now that it has occurred, Manchurian independence is regarded by the population as a thing of the past.

Refugees from Mukden I encountered en route spoke of the assurance felt by Japanese leaders in the Manchurian capital.

"Japanese soldiers are bragging they will die rather than leave Mukden," one cultured, well-educated Mukden business man, who had been forced out of his native city, told me.

Miss Mary Anderson Talks To Methodists

Missionary Returned From Algiers, Africa, Speaks In First And Epworth Churches

The congregation of the First Methodist church was thrilled Sunday morning when they had as their special guest speaker Miss Mary Anderson, who has been supported by this congregation in Algiers, Africa, where Miss Anderson has been leading the gospel the past [redacted].

Miss Anderson is a British woman who received her education in France and many years ago felt the call to the mission field. At the Sunday school session she met the pupils in the auditorium and told them of the work the Methodist church is doing.

At 11 a. m. Miss Anderson filled the pulpit and took as the text of her discourse the first chapter of Haggai and brought out the specific thought that at one time Africa was the seat of the Christian church in the time of St. Augustine, and she told how this church had passed and the country fell into degradation and darkness, but today, through the work of the Lord, the missionaries have succeeded in opening all doors and felling all barriers and the country is now one vast opportunity for the missionaries to spread the gospel.

Miss Anderson told of the Algiers station being the only Moslem field that God has given to the Methodist church, but mentioned the fact that he is working most wonderfully to bring about the strong establishment of Christianity here.

God's work is to put the spiritual kingdom first in the minds of men, and according to Miss Anderson's way of thinking, God has a motive in the present economic conditions, which points to putting the spiritual kingdom before the material.

Miss Anderson addressed the congregation at the Epworth Methodist church at the evening service and this week will be guest at many functions.

Verdict Stands In Cartwright Case

Court Refuses New Trial In Case Growing Out Of Accidental Shooting Of Girl

Motion for a new trial in the case of Pete and Mary Pecararo against the Cartwright Hardware Company of Ellwood City, was refused in an opinion handed down by Judge James A. Chambers at county court this morning. The case was one in which a son of the plaintiffs had purchased a rifle at defendant's hardware store, with which he accidentally shot and killed his sister. Plaintiff's sought to recover damages on the grounds that the hardware company had violated the statute prohibiting the sale of firearms, to a person under fifteen years of age. At the trial of the case it was shown that the parents knew that the boy had the gun, and not having taken it away from him were guilty of contributory negligence. The verdict in the case was in favor of the defendant, and plaintiffs made a motion for a new trial.

Other Opinions.

In the case of Nick Papachynski against Frank Richards, arising out of the sale of a farm in Pulaski township, it was ordered that the complainant pay the defendant $2,345.05 within 30 days. Defendant is to get all the crops on the farm.

In the case of Virginia Kalajainen against Carl and Matt Kalajainen, in which the defendant, Carl, had been ordered to pay his wife $6 per week, and got back in his payments, judgment for $174, was awarded. Matt Kalajainen was surety on the bond.

New trial is refused in the case of Ora B. Braley against the First National Bank of Ellwood City. The case was one in which the bank had obtained judgment against M. H. Braley, husband of the plaintiff, and she had claimed certain goods levied upon. Most of the goods were awarded Mrs. Braley at the trial of the case.

Two Young Men Held For Alleged Attempted Theft

Fines Are Imposed On Both Of Them By Mayor Gillespie

About midnight, Sunday, Harvey Hickling of 205 North Mercer street, heard the familiar sound of the motor of his car, which he had left parked on Falls street opposite The Castleton, but a short distance of his home and rushing out saw someone attempting to steal his machine. This person jumped from the machine.

He notified the police and Officer Robert Dukes answered the call. He saw two young men acting kind of suspicious at North and Mercer streets and followed them on various streets of the district until they reached Wallace avenue on North Mercer street, where the officer stopped them and took them back to the police station.

They claimed they had been visiting friends on East Washington street and were trying to bum a ride to their homes in Youngstown. They gave the names of Walter Goiener, 3433 Mahoning avenue, Youngstown, O. and C. M. Hodge, 720 Hays avenue, Youngstown. Mayor W. H. Gillespie this morning fined both $5 with the alternative of five days in the county jail. Local friends got Hodge out before noon, while an effort is being made to secure funds to get the other out.

Capone's Guard Faces Charge Of Carrying Weapon

Counsel For Al Capone Hesitate To Represent Bodyguard Who Carried Gun

JUDGE WILKERSON HANDLING CASE

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

FEDERAL BUILDING, CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 12.—Subdued in demeanor after thirty-six hours in jail, Philip D'Andrea, the gun-toting body guard of Al Capone, the gang chieftain on trial for income tax evasion faced Judge James H. Wilkerson in federal court today to show cause why he could not be punished for contempt of court.

D'Andrea was seized Saturday with a loaded .38 calibre pistol in his possession as he was leaving the courtroom with Capone. After a discussion with Capone's attorneys over the D'Andrea incident, Judge Wilkerson granted a postponement of the case until tomorrow morning.

Capone Not Present.

Capone was not in court when his confidante, D'Andrea, stood before Judge Wilkerson this morning. Capone's trial was not to be resumed until 11 o'clock and D'Andrea's appearance was a prelude to its resumption.

When D'Andrea's name was called, Attorney Michal Ahern, of counsel for Capone, stepped with him to the bench. Ahern said he and his co-counsel, Albert Kink, had discussed the matter of representing D'Andrea on the gun carrying incident and they wanted to be certain there was no irregularity on their part in so doing and also that such action would not prejudice the cause of Capone.

Attorney Fink spoke up:

Case Called Today.

"I don't think we ought too represent D'Andrea until after the Capone trial. After that it would be all right."

Judge Wilkerson promptly replied that the D'Andrea incident was up for settlement today. He explained:

"D'Andrea is here to show cause why he should not be in contempt of court. It seems to me the fact are not disputed. Deputy marshals asked Pandrea if he was armed, and he said he was."

Attorney Ahern called attention to the fact that a penitentiary sentence might be involved in the D'Andrea incident. He remarked:

"I know of no law of the United States that prevents a citizen from carrying a gun."

Judge Wilkerson, with some heat, replied:

This man (pointing at D'Andrea) has been sitting beside the defendant, Capone, in court for days with a revolver and ammunition on his person. He must have had the pistol for some purpose. The court will exercise it's power to protect the court."

Case Postponed

In the midst of the discussion, the judge turned to the dapper D'Andrea, who was attired in a cream colored suit and light brown tie, and asked:

"What do you want done about this?"

D'Andrea in a low voice replied:

"I'd like to have a continuance until Thursday or Friday."

After a pause, the judge said:

"I will postpone your case until tomorrow morning. You will have ample time to prepare a defense."

Attorney Fink remarked that if the jury was to learn about the D'Andrea incident he thought they should be given "all the facts".

The judge told him the jury had no way of knowing anything about it, as they are not permitted to read the newspapers.

Defense Attorney Ahern suggested the judge might not have the power to proceed against D'Andrea without an incident.

Remanded To Jail

"It may be this matter ought to proceed by indictment," declared Ahern." It may be the court cannot proceed without indictment. We have been given to understand that this man had a right to carry a gun."

Somewhat nettled, the judge replied that the matter is now in the hands of the United States government and that the United States district attorney would proceed with the case at the proper time.

D'Andrea was then remanded to the county jail.

Capone bought $7,289.15 worth of furniture and lamps for his exotic home on Palm Island, Florida, on June 11, 1928, it was testified as the trial was resumed.

Miss Jean Rieves, former bookkeeper at the Jack Niles Furniture company, in Chicago, the first called, gave this evidence. The government was proceeding with it's efforts to show the life of luxury Capone was leading at a time when he was alleged to be evading payment of his income taxes to Uncle Sam.

Capone, bereft of the armed bodyguard that previously had accompanied him into the courtroom daily, listened with casual interest to Miss Rieves' testimony.

Miss Rieves recalled that Capone personally had come to the furniture house in June, 1928, to make the purchase of the $7,289.15 worth of furniture. He instructed the firm, she said, to send it to Palm Island, Miami Beach, "in care of Parker Henderson".

Parker Henderson, Jr., son of a former mayor of Miami, had acted as Capone's representative in a number of matters in Miami. It was in Henderson's name that Capone's Palm Island estate was purchased, it later being transferred to the name of "Mae Capone," the defendant's wife.

Brief synopsis of Japan's charge against China: "What do you mean by being so helpless."

Code of modern critics: If you say it cleverly enough, people won't notice that it isn't worth saying.

Rotarians Hear Rev. C. S. Joshua

Croton Pastor Speaks On "What Makes A Nation Great?"

"America," the Rotarians of New Castle were told today, "has gained her preeminence among the other nations of the world primarily because of what service she has given to other lands and because of the great men she has produced."

The Rev. Clifford S. Joshua, pastor of the Croton Methodist Episcopal church, was speaking, and his subject was "What Makes a Nation Great?" The minister's message was one of the most inspirational for some time, highly appropriate to the observance of Columbus Day.

"Many nations have attained a leadership as great as ours," continued Rev. Joshua, "but no nation as yet has learned the secret of how to stay there. America, your land and my land, will find that secret, she must find it.

"Our country will remain in a predominating rank, she will remain great just in proportion as she cares for her people and continues to produce great men. It is the nation that offers outstanding leaders that will always rank high."

The clergyman, before concluding his address, compared Russia's greatness with Switzerland, China's with Scotland. Both Switzerland and Scotland are far smaller but as nations they today occupy higher places of rank in the world than does Russia or China.

"Russia has failed to gain a lofty place soley because she does so little for her people, the freedom of thought and action is withheld," said Rev. Joshua. "Switzerland cares for hers."

WHAT NEW CASTLE SCHOOLS ARE DOING

Under the general caption of "Know Your School Series," a series of bulletins has been prepared by various teachers of the New Castle schools dealing with the activities of the schools.

Each bulletin deals with some particular phase of school life in this city and the entire series can be classed as a full description of the school curriculum here.

Here is one of the series.

WORK OF THE ELEMENTARY CLERKS

By Wilda A. Smith

Clerks are appointed as assistants to principals in the elementary schools so that the latter may have adequate time for the real purpose of their employment—that of professional supervision and leadership. Dut to the advancement in education, the principal, with a group of thirty-nine teachers as we have at Lincoln-Garfield and Pollock Avenue schools, does not have time to take care of the office duties, but with the aid of a clerk he is able to give about seventy percent of the time school is in session to educational and supervisory work.

Clerks in the elementary schools were first introduced in New Castle in 1924. At a meeting of the Board of School Directors held November eleventh of the same year, the Superintendent of Schools was authorized to appoint three clerks: "One was for the schools under Mr. Hughes' supervision, Lincoln-Garfield, Pollock Avenue and Thaddeus Stevens. Another spent part of her time at Mahoning and Lawrence Schools under Mr. Conner's supervision and the rest of her time at Highland Avenue, Arthur McGill and West Side Schools with Mr. Leslie as principal. The third divided her time between Terrace and Aiken schools under Miss Perry: she also did the clerical work at Rose Avenue and Oak Street schools under Miss Dart."

The duties of the clerks may be divided under three headings: (1) Routine work. (2) Compiling reports. (3) Special work.

A. Routine Work

One of the first duties of the clerk is handling the office details and answering the telephone. The telephone is one of the most important factors in the school office, because of the close contact we must keep with the superintendent's and business manager's offices.

A record of the teacher's time must be kept, and at the end of each school month a report is sent to the superintendent's office. When a teacher is absent, it is our duty to see that she fills out an excuse blank upon her return to school.

The clerk must keep up the stock of instructional, office and janitor supplies by making out requisitions for the amount needed and sending them to the central office each month. The clerks have charge of the stock rooms, oversee all incoming supplies and fill the teacher's requisitions.

An individual record card for each pupil is filed. These cards contain all of the personal data of each child. When a new pupil enters the school, the clerk must see that the teacher makes out one of these cards completely.

Mimeograph work and cutting stencils take up a great deal of the clerk's time. Through the use of the mimeograph, drills, exercises, contracts and tests in practically all subjects can be made and these all tend to make school work more vital.

Taking care of minor details sounds like a small item, but after all, it's the little things that count. Every day many questions arise that the clerk must be responsible for answering. Frequently there are requests made for the records of boys who are going out into public works. These may be for ages, scholastic standing, character, or various other things which office files reveal. Parent's Day and assembly programs also bring up questions which the clerks may answer in cooperation with the teachers. She must reply to much of the mail and deal with many pupil cases.

When a pupil is transferred from one school to another, the clerk must fill out a transfer blank for the child and see that his record cards are sent to the school to which he is being transferred, whether it is in the city or some other part of the state.

B. Compiling Reports

Compiling reports is one of the most important duties of the clerk. A summary of each type of report from all the teachers in each building is made on one sheet and sent to the Administration Building. This, of course, is preceded by a careful check of the individual reports of the teachers. In the following paragraphs, each type of these reports is briefly described.

At the end of every month each teacher makes out an attendance report for her home room. An attendance report is also made out at the end of each semester. In this report, she must account for every pupils she has had in her room for that period of time.

Every six weeks a report is made out showing the standing of the pupils, whether it be satisfactory, doubtful or poor.

At the close of the school year, many special reports are made. The Text-book Report is one showing the number and condition of text-books we have on hand and the quality of them, i. e. new, good and fair. The Instructional Supplies Report shows the amount and kind of supplies we received during the year, supplies used, and supplies we have on hand at the close of the term.

Every pupil who is neither absent nor tardy during the course of the school year is given a Perfect Attendance Certificate for the first year and a seal for each successive year. Therefore, an accurate record must be kept of the numbers of the certificates as this report is sent to the State Department.

The Board of Education has adopted the budget plan. Every year a budget is made out for each school. This is an estimate of the text-books, instructional supplies, art supplies and equipment of all kinds that will be needed for the coming year.

C. Special Work

The clerk must help the school medical inspector and nurses when they make the yearly examination of the pupils. She checks the cards, keeps a record of the defects and and makes out slips to send home to the parents. When toxin anti-toxin and the Schick Test are given to the pupils, the clerk must take the names of the pupils, and then later record the results on the health cards. In addition to this, the individual health record card denotes the general physical condition of the child.

If it is necesary for a teacher to be out of her room for a short time, and there isn't anyone to take charge of the room, the clerk is called on to watch the class.

If we go about our work systematically, our moments are all utilized so that our work does not become monotonous. After all, our duties are not so formal and routine like as they sound for many opportunities are given to meet different people and this in turn brings up many problems of an interesting nature.

MY NEW YORK

BY JAMES ASWELL

By Central Press

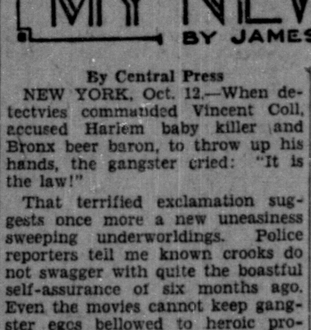
NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—When detectvies commuuded Vincent Coll, accused Harlem baby killer and Bronx beer baron, to throw up his hands, the gangster cried: "It is the law!"

That terrified exclamation suggests once more a new uneasiness sweeping underworldings. Police reporters tell me known crooks do not swagger with quite the boastful self-assurance of six months ago. Even the movies cannot keep gangster egos bellowed to heroic proportions in the face of deep-cutting public revulsion and contempt.

What set the shift in motion no one can positively say. But it began about the time "Scarface" Al Capone was arrested. Then something akin to fright swept dozens of dives. If "Snorkey" Capone wasn't invulnerable, who could feel safe?

Other factors may have been responsible. The immense, turgid, substrata of society seems at last to have been aroused. Joblessness and financial difficulties are enough. They can't be bothered with gang oppression. The thin, tight wire of public patience appears to be snapping at last.

When the car in which Coll is believed to have ridden roared through a quiet Harlem street one summer dusk a few months ago and left behind five bullet-riddled children writhing in pain, there was such a repercussion of sentiment that one of the large movie houses showing a gangster film attributes a 25 per cent drop in patronage to the tragedy.



"Yaa-aa-aa! Yah gangster!"

From the haunts of gentlemen familiar with machine-gun triggers and prison cells came stories of oaths to "squeal" on the perpetrators of the outrage should opportunity arise. The gunmen had gone too far even for their collaboration-at-arms. They might not look ramentuary in the sacred close-mouthed code of gangdom.

And night before last, arrayed in a suit several tints brighter than the sample warned, I strolled through one of the toughest neighborhoods along the East river. Three small boys took note of my finery and squawked: "Yaa-aa-aa! Yah, gangster!"

Six months ago, from such a source, that cry might have carried the accents of flattery. This time it was razzberries, pure and simple. The heroes have fallen.

DETECTIVE WORK

It is easy to tell out-of-towners in the bright light area. People packed around window displays are almost always natives of Manhattan. People blocking traffic as they gaze skyward at some architectural wonder are almost always ditto. People who take buses to Chinatown are, nowadays, 75 per cent residents of Greater New York. Outsiders know there is no Chinatown any more. Strangers can be spotted because they are dressed neither in the manner of Paris midinettes nor minstrel end men. And, though perhaps I am biased, they seem to me to look healthier.

LIVELY TOPIC

At four gatherings recently conversation has veered to the comment of Miss Edna Ferber, the novelist, upon her arrival not long ago from a European holiday. She called American young people "beautiful young idiots" and criticized them for lack of interest in "youth movements" or political economy, adding that while she "ate" gin drinking herself, she thought youngsters should have, as she had, other and more serious concerns.

My own feeling is that Miss Ferber deserves a medal—for getting into the papers and conversation with an attack on modern youth, a publicity bid so stale that it would make the "intellectual young people of Europe" turn from their discussion of trade balances and dictators to give a long, tired yawn.

There is something about the skyline of New York which seems to evoke platitudes from natives and strangers alike—and cause those platitudes to seem fresh and significant to ship news reporters. Suggested theme for Miss Ferber's next triumphal return interview: "American men do not know how to captivate women."

Gambling House Ruined In Raid

County Detectives At Pittsburgh Make Clean Sweep Of Gambling Den

OWNER IS HELD WITHOUT BAIL

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 12.—One of Pittsburgh's largest gambling places was a mass of wreckage today following a sudden raid by county detectives, who created a stampede among 200 patrons when they swooped down on the establishment and demolished every gambling device in the expensively-furnished place.

The lay-out, which detectives said was one of the most elaborate in Western Pennsylvania, was in full swing when the detective broke into the establishment.

At the detectives' entry, the players made a wild break to escape and many dived through windows into a rear alley. Those who remained were lined up by detectives and their names and addresses taken for use in case they are called as witnesses.

Steve Costi, alleged operator of the place, was arrested and held without bail pending the filing of an information against him today.

Complaints to the district attorney's office that persons had been mulcted out of large sums of money recently led to the raid, detectives said.

Modern School Gives Physical Examination If Grades Are Falling

Dr Clendening Relates That Even Minor Health Defects May Affect Pupil's Standing In Studies.

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The idea of the medical supervision of school children by health boards is relatively a new one. The first suggestion of the plan was published by Dr. Henry Bowditch in 1890 and even twenty years later there were few cities outside of Massachusetts with thoroughly equipped departments.

The ideal for such a department includes not only a general physician, but a dentist, an oral hygienist, a specialist in mental disorders and an orthopedic surgeon. The National Child Health Council recommends for a city of 25,000 to 30,000 inhabitants, a director, a general physician, a supervisor of health training, a mental hygienist, a dentist, an oral hygienist and three nurses with a cost per pupils of about $3 per annum.

The nurses are especially valuable in order to make contacts with the home and explain to the parents why the child needs this or that especial attention.

One has to stop and realize what a tremendous departure this is from the old idea that the parents were competent to take care of the physical and mental health of their own children. It gives some point to the question. Dr. Watson asks "Are Parents Necessary?" It certainly is a change from the old days when Johnny brought a note home from teacher saying, "Please give Johnny a bath." The parent wrote back, "Dear Teacher: Johnny ain't no rose. Don't smell him, learn him."

But the new system found that pupils did not stand well in their studies if they had certain apparently minor physical defects. It is well illustrated in a story published in the current issue of Hygeia, the health magazine published under the direction of the American Medical association and which should be read by all parents.

It is about Dorothy, who brought home a poor report card. Father was angry and mother said to the frail nervous child: "If you have such bad grades again you are going to get a whipping."

The school nurse called the next day, but the mother said "I know the child isn't perfect. What child is?"

"She has a poor posture, and is a mouth breather," replied the nurse. "The teacher says she is sliding back in her school work, and this may be due to her physical condition."

"She is sliding back in her school work because the tetcher has a pick on her. She doesn't talk half loud enough, and won't repeat for her."

So the nurse was compelled to go away, with a feeling that no good had been accomplished.

However, the story goes on to tell that before long Dorothy was found to be abesent from school because of illness. The nurse made another visit and found the mother in a changed attitude. Dorothy had developed a running ear, which her family physician said might have been avoided if her tonsils and adenoids had been removed soon enough.

With this accomplished the child improved vastly, not only in health but in her studies.

The story should be read in its entirety, as it shows clearly an attitude on the part of parents, which while it may sometimes be justified should have good reasons for its existence.

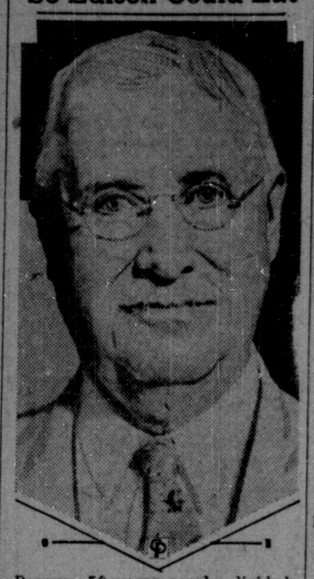
So Edison Could Eat



Because 50 years ago he divided his job with Thomas A. Edison so he could eat while he continued his experiments with telegraphy, George Myers, Kansas City businessman, is more than ordinarily concerned over the inventor's failing health. Edison came into the telegraph office at St. Louis where Myers was an operator and said he had been fired. Myers split his "trick" with Edison so that Edison could get money to eat, despite the fact that the manager who had discharged him wired Myers that young Edison was crazy because he kept "disconnecting and rearranging batteries and wires."

THE PARENT PROBLEM

Church May Help Educate Its Parents

Dr. Myers Advocates Adult Class In Sunday School

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

On the Atlantic coast an adult department rarely exists in the Sunday school, I am told. In the middle west, and far west, there are numerous Sunday schools with large attendance by adults.

From the angle of parent education adult classes are indispensable to a good Sunday school. It seems to me that children are really not the most important members of a Sunday school anyway. The parents are, particularly the parents of young children.

In the best Sunday school, children cannot get much religious training. Whether parents know it or not, the child's religious attitudes, whatever they may be, are, for the most part, acquired at home.

Of course, parents concerned about religious nurture of their children can go to church on Sunday to get their spiritual batteries charged for the week. Assuming that these batteries don't run down by having the lights on too much or by too frequent starting on cold mornings, there remains the problem for the parents to get their children to ride with them.

* * *

To date not much has been given in church sermons to help parents in the happy guidance of their children. Very ltitle, indeed, in adult classes of the Sunday school. Nevertheless, there are scattered signs of a beginning in this direction.

It seems to me the Sunday school offers a rare opportunity for parent education of a most practical sort. Certainly the motive should be there in the parent and the pastor; in them that they might be better parents and in him that his parishioners might prepare themselves to win their children to church membership.

Curiously enough, the average preacher seems to have overlooked the promise in parent education for building of a stronger church. Most have done nothing more than to scold parents when they get a whack at them before some club or P. T. A. Usually the pastor is more discreet when he talks from his pulpit. He hardly is aware then that any parents are in his congregation.

The Parent-Teacher association, whose membership is prettly generally composed of church members, has been leading off in parent education.

Why should the church be so far behind in the movement? One reason, I guess, is to be found in tradition and in the fact that the average preacher all these years has had his attention on immediate soul-saving, in holding and increasing his membership at once, and not in building for the future.

* * *

No matter how regularly parents go to church or how demonstrative their religion is at home, their children will want to emulate them in religion only in proportion as they genuinely esteem their parents. In addition to being good and religious, as traditionally understood, parents need to be able to live daily with their children and to guide them with the least possible annoyance to both parents and children and the greatest possible family enjoyment by all.

In the future parents who are concerned about the religious education of their children will not send their children to Sunday school. They will go to Sunday school with their children and they will learn at Sunday school how to be better parents—how to make good religious work at home.

Neck Is Broken In Auto Accident

One Man Killed And Another Injured When Tire Explodes

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 12—An exploding rear tire sent on auto driven by Raymond Waechter 23, of Oil City into a somersault and it crashed against the guard rail on the Franklin-Oil City highway at an early hour Sunday morning. Waechter's neck was broken and Ronald Miller, 21 of Erie, his companion was injured.

The two were returning to Oil City and the car was traveling at high speed as it crossed the New York Central tracks at the limits of the Eclipse works of the Atlantic Refining Company. Waechter evidently was striving to straighten the car as it sped along the highway's edge at a dangerous angle when the right rear tire blew sending the machine into a spin. Both youths were thrown to the pavement.

TIRE IS STOLEN

George Minskey of 906 Croton avenue, reported over the week end that while his machine was parked on Taylor street, that some unknown person had stolen a tire from his car.

Labor Sessions Are Postponed

Due To Canadian Holiday No Session Of Labor Federation Is Held Today

WHIPPING PROGRAM INTO SHAPE TODAY

(International News Service)

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 12.—Although there was no session of the American Federation of Labor convention here today because of a Canadain holiday, various committees were hard at work in an effort to whip matters into shape so that the convention might be concluded this week.

Many important matters were to come up before the delegates this week, including the "beer question", unemployment insurance and the shorter week and day question.

Program Mapped.

A conflict is expected to develop on the floor of the convention when labor goes officially on record concerning prohibition laws. One faction appears to believe that the legalizing of 2.75 per cent beer would be sufficient, while the other faction would sweep all existing prohibtion laws from the books.

The matter of unemployment insurance is also expected to find a division of opinion among the delegates.

Reports were current here that the administration would like to have the convention go on record as being opposed to unemployment insurance.

LOOKING BACK

IN NEW CASTLE

To the Leslie Hotel belongs the distinction of being both the oldest of the present day hotels and also the hotel that has been in operation as such for the longest consecutive period of years in this community and probably in the Western Pennsylvania district. Records of authentic orgin show that the Leslie House as it was then known was finished and furnished ready for occupation on April 1, 1853, which means that it was just a little more than 78 years ago, since the hostelry, which is still one of the city's leading hotels, was first opened to the use of the traveling public. Records show that it contained ninety rooms, which made it one of the largest hotels of those early days and must have made it one of the outstanding places for travelers in a community of the size of New Castle at that time. In the time that this structure has been located at the corner of South Mercer and Washington streets, it has changed hands many times and it has also undergone numerous changes and improvements to bring it up to date, but it is a most interesting, nevertheless, to know that there is still standing in the city a structure that has withstood the changing times and is still housing a business of the same type for which it was originally constructed. In its time, this hotel has housed some of the more famous individuals and celebreties of the past three-quarters of a century and more and there is every indication that it may still continue to be known as a hotel for several more decades.

South Carolina recently had five circuses showing at the same time, not counting a special session of the Legislature.

Coulthard Asks Parking Permit

Says Arrangements Are Complete For Bus Station In Y. M. C. A.

C. C. Coulthard appeared before city council which met in council chambers today and advised councilmen he had made arrangements whereby he would take over the Y. M. C. A. cafteria, October 15, for motor bus station purposes. He requested council grant him space for parking of the busses in front of Haney's store, West Washington street. Council referred the request to Mayor Gillespie and Police Chief Horner for an investigation and report.

Coulthard informed council that all coach lines excepting one had agreed to use the bus station. He also said that the ticket offices for interurban railway cars would be located in the waiting room and that the cars would stop at the station to take on and discharge passengers. He said the busses could park, "head in", and he believes that not more than four busses would be parked at any one time.

Councilman Reeves said that the Welch Bus line had been granted permission to park busses along the curb of the Wallace block in North Jefferson street. The question then arose as to whether or not it would be better to have all the busses park on the north side of the Public Square between North Jefferson street and Diamond way. It developed that if this is permitted busses could not be parked, "head in", close to the intersection of Public Square and North Jefferson street.

Clyde Smith was present during the session and remarked that he did not see why all the parking space should be given to the bus lines and suggested that the coach lines purchase the municipal parking plot or privately owned land which would help the city derive taxation. He said however, his main purpose of visiting council was to find out if the "P. & L. E. is going to have any means of transporting passengers between the city and the Seventh ward." He suggested that they have some way of taking care of such transportation.

Council could not give Mr. Smith any definite information although Solicitor White advised against the city interfering with any plans of the P. & L. E. which proposes to build a new railroad station in the Seventh ward.

Following the discussion Councilman Burns introduced a motion, which passed, directing the mayor and police chief to ascertain if the Welch Bus line is parking busses properly in North Jefferson street. It had been reported they had not been doing so.

That love was instituted to worry those who do not have to worry about their wickedness.

Divorce Refused In Court Order

Opinions Are Handed Down By Judge Hildebrand In Several Cases At Court

In an opinion handed down by Judge R. L. Hildebrand at court this morning a divorce is refused Nick Kozlowsky from his wife, Helen Kozlowsky. The application was made on the grounds of cruelty, and the court holds that the alleged cruelty was insufficient to warrant a legal separation. The couple were married in 1913 and lived together until March, 1927. They have four children. Libellant was ordered to pay respondent and counsel $75.

Other Decisions

In the case of J. L. and Alma Miller against Henry G. Fox a new trial was granted. The suit was based on a contract between plaintiff and defendant, for the support of defendant's mother. Defendant was to pay $5 per week and more if the condition of Mrs. Fox required extra attention. Later additional attention was needed and a dispute arose as to the amount to be paid. At the former trial a verdict was rendered in favor of the plaintiff for $232.17.

Isaac O. Shoaff's application for a divorce from his wife Margaret M. Shoaff, on the grounds of cruelty was granted, but alimony was refused. Testimony showed that the couple have not been getting along harmoniously for years.

In the case of E. E. and Lillian Linsley against Estelle Brown, growing out of a controversy over the width of an alley between Whippo and Ray streets, exceptions to the bill in equity is dismissed at the costs of the plaintiff.

American Business On Start Of Recovery Declares Seiberling

(International News Service Financial Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—"We have seen the end of a situation dominated by fear and uncertainty, and American business is now ready to start on a slow but confident recovery," F. A. Seiberling, a nationally prominent figure in the rubber industry told International News Service today.

Seiberling is in New York leading a group conference of 150 dealers in this territory. Between this time and December he will conduct similar conferences at 35 financial centers, winding up in Honolulu.

"We have been through what they call a liquidating process" said Seiberling, "The most severe in the annals of industrial history. Fear alone has dominated the situation. The bank depositor feared for the safety of his money. The banker feared for his liquidity. The depositor withdrew his money and the banker called his loans. Happily this condition is passing or has already passed, and it will not take long for its beneficial effects to be seen in the world of business.

"One thing American business men must keep in mind. Business in 1929 was abnormal. By no stretch of the imagination could it have continued at that pace. Now it is sub-normal and will gradually but surely reach up to normal levels."

Emphasizing the sharp decline in inventories which has been going on in the last year Seiberling, who is president of the Seiberling Rubber company, said that in contrast with normal inventories of 13,000,000 tires, the tire industry had only 8,000,000 tires on hand today. The latest development in tire manufacturing, he said, was a process to eliminate heat, the most destructive agency. This is done by a new system known to the trade as transverse holes in the tire tread.

"Tire prices have been reasonably stable at the lowest levels in all history," Seiberling declared. "We are today buying crude rubber at one-third the cost of production, cotton at less than production cost and other raw materials at proportionately lower costs. This is the whole explanation for the low prices now prevailing for manufactured goods. As businss improves, prices will stiffen all along the line.

"The automobile industry is on the way up. This means more business for the steel industry, automobile industry and other basis lines. In common with other industrial leaders, I feel confident that we have seen the worst of the present depression and that slow but gradual improvement will be the program for the coming season."

Gas Company Drops Minimum Charge Here

Will Send Estimated Bill When Meter Readers Cannot Get Into House

Manufacturers Light & Heat company today informed council, which met in city hall, that the company proposes to employ a new system of charging for gas here. Recently council discussed the minimum charge with officials. According to Solicitor White "the company will do away with the minimum charge when meter readers cannot get into the house to read the meter."

He said that the company will make an estimated bill and charge at that rate. "They will charge twice on these estimates and then shut off the gas if they cannot get in to read the meter" the solicitor explained. Previously it had been charged that when the minimum charge had been paid it was not deducted from the next bill. The conference resulted in the change.

The letter from the company read to council today said:

"In any event that our readers are unable to obtain meter readings on both the regular and pick up call, an estimated reading will be established. This reading will be established from such information as is available and in the majority of cases will be based on the customer's gas consumption record for the same month of the preceding year.

"This proceedure will be followed for two months and at the end of the third month it will be incumbent upon the agents to obtain a reading. If he cannot get the third reading the company will give notice that service will be discontinued."

Supreme Court Reaffirms 5-4 Decision On Indiana Tax Law

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. — The Supreme Court today reaffirmed its five to four decision holding the Indiana anti-chain store tax law constitutional.

The action was taken in denying the petition for rehearing filed by executors of the estate of Lafayette A. Jackson, chain grocery store owner of Indianapolis.

In this the high court held that a higher tax could be exacted for ownership of two or more stores than on individually owned stores.

Rehearing also denied in other important cases decided last spring, including:

The 5 to 4 decision holding Prof. Douglas Clyde MacIntosh of Yale University and Marie Averill Bland, New York nurse, could not be naturalized because they refused to take unqualified oaths to fight for the nation in war.

Decision upholding President Hoover's oil conservation policy in denying permits on public lands.

Case in which court upheld order of California railroad commission for building of $10,000,000 Union passenger station in Los Angeles.

Decision setting aside personal injury verdict in Minnesota against Great Northern Railroad because lawyers appealed to passion of jurors.

The rehearings were denied without explanation.

Artists have been able to paint beautiful marine pictures on canvas, but here's a case where spreading, billowing canvas makes a charming picture all its own. The Gertrude L. Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

With the world series over, and the St. Louis fans believing there is a Santa Claus, the yawp of the dollar better about the series being fixed is once more heard. He believed the series was to be fixed for the Athletics to win the third world penant in a row and he socked his dollar down in that belief.

Finishing the series does one thing at least, it clears the atmosphere for football arguments. With golf packed away in the cupboard for another year, baseball over, and basketball still in the offing, the way is clear for football arguments, although here in Lawrence county this year it does seem as though our arguments would be more or less academic.

After going through the usual murders and crime news in the Sunday papers, the outlook for beet sugar in the next six months, and the resumes of the experts explaining why they were wrong in the world series there wasn't anything much left to read except the travel ads and customers how we went for those.

Sinuous things, those travel ads, that sneak into your consciousness and before you know it you are mentally making reservations on the Galumphia or the Hysteria for a two weeks cruise to Havana or Peru or some place where ice is never seen except in highballs.

Now is the time for all good steamship lines to step out with their sugar coated ads and they all seem to be doing it. Attractive no end.

All nice, ver ver nice, but all our travelling will be done in New Castle for some time. But it doesn't cost anything to day dream and make some of those warm weather trips.

Just now a trip from the second floor of the house down to the first floor seems like a non-stop flight. The Prisoner of Varennes had nothing on me for a few days.

Mementous Moments.—When a blockhead is troubled with wood ticks in his toupee

ARE YOU TAKING a SKY CAB THIS MORNING?

THE average American has definitely made up his mind that we have no commercial aviation in the United States because he hears so much about European air transport and so little that is not pessimistic about our own.

This aerial taxi business—as it has been aptly termed—is becoming fairly well organized and if the reader lives near a city of any reasonable size it is likely he has such a service in his locality though he may hear little of it. Such services are really being used, by such people as motion picture distributors having films to transport; press photographers rushing to the scene of some important news; persons called called from one place to another on urgent business or in cases of sickness; people trying to catch boats or trains after having missed the regular connections; manufacturers shipping urgently needed repair parts; aerial surveyors and a host of others to whom time-saving is of great importance.

More Business Wanted.

It is no reflection upon the operators of these services that they are not so generally known as they might be for the service is, as yet expensive. The small scale of present operations forces this and services of this kind cannot be sold to the public in the same manner as bus or taxicab transportation. They require the development of special methods and necessitate concentration of sales effort upon those most likely to call for their use. The operators of such services at present have found it necessary or advisable, as a general rule, to concentrate their efforts upon better prospects than the general public. The fact that the services are so seldom mentioned in the press is worthy of note; their operation has become sufficiently commonplace to have lost its news value in the regular course of events They are only mentioned when an accident happens. The Aircraft Year Book lists about 57 services of this type scattered throughout the United States and operating a total of 217 airplanes. The compilation of this list is purely voluntary and many operators do not take the trouble to make returns of their activities to the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce. In an effort to determine the actual number of aerial taxi operators, Archibald Black, aeronautical engineer of Garden City, N. Y., compiled a lit of 125 scattered throughout the country. And yet, with no official records which can be consulted, it is obvious that even this list far from complete.

Some Figures.

In the absence of government supervision, there is no way of telling exactly how much milage these operators cover nor how many passengers they carry. Frequently even the operators themselves can only guess at the totals as the small scale of their operations does not always justify the keeping of very complete records and much of the compiled satistics are estimated or taken from memory. However, the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, compiling the information as carefully and accurately as possible under such difficulties, estimated at 57 operators flew 922,048 miles during 1924, carrying 48,904 passengers and 159,564 pounds of mail and freight. These figures, it should be noted, do not include the activities of the United States Air Mail Service, which flew 2,155,761 airplane miles with mail in the same period. The passenger figures given about include what are classed as "joy rides" but, as these are relatively short trips, the total mileage should not be so seriously affected by this inclusion. While, on one hand, the optimism of certain operators may have slightly affected the accuracy of the total figures this should be fully offset by the fact that more than half of the operators in the country refrained from submitting any reports whatsoever. Admitting that it is little more than guesswork, it seems probable that the total mileage of privately operated airplanes in the United States ran somewhere between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 miles in 1924.

Going back a little, to better trace the thread of airline development in the United States, we may regard the establishment of the United States Air Mail Service in 1918 as the practical beginning. To be very exact, this was not the first air mail service in the country, but it was the practical beginning of air transportation here. Being fortunate in freedom from the necessity of making revenue meet expenditures, the Air Mail Service has been constantly expanded from the experimental New York-Washington line to the present Transcontinental line and the New York-Chicago night line. At no time has this service covered expenses for any period, although isolated days have shown a profit. This is, by no means, a criticism of the operation of the service. It is merely history and it is fulfilling this purpose to excellent advantage. These statements may not sound encouraging, but the fact of the matter is that no new means of transport should be expected to pay immediately. The fault is not so much with air transport as with those who expected too much of it. What is of more practical value is the knowledge that most air routes throughout the world show a fairly steady increase in patronage.

The real trouble has been overoptimism; we have been expecting too much in the way of instant public acceptance of air lines. The necessity of passing through an introductory period should have been more generally appreciated. The lack of government support combined with limited utilization by the general public and frequently, insufficient capital has resulted in suspension of several of the scheduled American airlines. However, with a sympathetic administration in Washington and with a very marked change taking place in public sentment the outlook for scheduled services in the United States begins to look more encouraging. During the past few months several very substantial groups have been organized

While the adjustments were taking place in operations of scheduled airlines, there was considerable development in nonscheduled airplane operation in this country. Indeed, in many cases, those operators who were forced to suspend scheduled services, fell back upon the device of oprating only upon call.

BEAVER FALLS TOPS ELLWOOD HIGH 18-0

Ciotte Scores Three Touchdowns Giving Valley Eleven Victory, Saturday

Ellwood Aerial Attack Fails To Function—First Half Of Game Hard Fought

ELLWOOD CITY, Oct. 12.—After a terrific struggle to a no score first half, Coach Heckathorne's warriors of Beaver Falls literally ran over the Ellwood machine to score two touchdowns in the third quarter and one in the last to take a decisive 18-0 victory on Lincoln field Saturday afternoon. The game was attended by a record crowd.

Practically the whole student body of Ellwood was present to root for their favorites. Beaver Falls cheering section was also well represented. A large crowd was gathered around the side lines. The Beaver Falls student band gave an interesting demonstration between halves.

Fans were skeptical in predicting the outcome of the battle after watching the teams go up and down the field to a scoreless tie for the first half. They were in fact turned to the opinion that the contest would end this way. Beaver Falls had entered the affray a slight favorite.

On Even Terms

The teams battled on even terms in the initial period, neither showing much offensive power. The locals performed brilliantly in the first half of the contest on the defensive. Coach Howard Gills forwarded wall broke through time after time to throw the Beaver Falls backs for losses. Except for a beautiful 12 yard pass from Frisk to Vanderillo and a clever gain of 15 yards through the center of the opposing line by the latter on a punt formation, the period was uneventful. Ellwod fumbled twice with the enemy recovering each time. "Spungo" Vanderillo recovered a Beaver Falls fumble for the locals also in this period. Ellwood did most of the ball toting. Neither team threatened the goal line at this time.

Eeach team opened up a little more in the ensuing period and attempted several passes. The visitors made their first big gain via the air, a pass from Ciotte to Barry which netted 28 yards. The former proved to be a triple threat man in the contest. The Hechathorne coached machine got as far as the 25 yard line following the pass, where the locals mustered their forces to push them back to the 30 yard line where they took possession of the ball on downs. Wilson, Ellwood quarterback, punted out of danger on the second down after a try through the line. Ciotte was downed in his tracks on the Ellwood 31 yard line, but on the first play he skipped through right tackle for 15 yards. After two trys through the line failed to gain any yardage, Ciotte tryed two passes, but the Ellwood boys were wide awake and batted them down, to take possession of the ball on the 50 yard line. The locals completed two beautiful passes, from Frisk to Neff and from Frisk to Vanderillo, when the half ended. The former netted 20 yards and the latter 10, to bring the ball on the Ellwood 22 yard line.

Visitors Open Up

Apparently the Tigers received a few rebukes or so from their coach between halves for the remainder of the contest was an altogether different matter. Beaver Falls took the situation well in hand during the third quarter. After taking the ball on downs from Ellwood following the kickoff they started a sustained march for the goal, with Ciotte, Schaubhut, and Barry doing the ball toting. The march was made from the 51 yard line with line plays being used. Ciotte plunged through center from the two yard line for the marker. His placement kick for the extra point failed. Score, Beaver Falls 6, Ellwood City 0.

Ellwood received again but was forced to kick. The visitors failing to gain ground, returned the kick on the fourth down which Dick Wilson received on the 49 yard line. On the first play he fumbled, the ball being recovered by Ciotte who also fumbled, with Cavalier, local center recovering. The blue and white was forced to kick out of danger again. Wilson got off a bad punt which Barry snatched out of the air on his own 38. On the first play he threw a nice pass to Ciotte on the 56 yard line who ran the remaining 44 yards for another score. The locals presented a stone wall for Ciotte's plunge for the extra point. Score, Beaver Falls 12, Ellwood City, 0. Following the kickoff on the fourth down, the locals punted out of danger, after which Beaver Falls had time for one play when the quarter closed, with the score remaining unchanged.

Score On Pass

Beaver Falls had possession of the ball on the Ellwood 40 yard line when the final stanza opened. Ciotte had negotiated a first down in two plays after which Barry fumbled to recover again with a 3 yard loss. Neff who had been playing a splendid game for Ellwood snatched Schaubhut's fumble on the second down. On the first play Ellwood was granted an 18 yard pass from Frisk to Wilson because of interference. The former attempted another pass which Ciotte, quick as an eagle pulled it out of the air and advanced it to the Ellwood 41 yard line. After squirming 8 yards through right guard on the first play, Ciotte threw a seemingly unsuccessful pass to Hamer. An Ellwood back had batted the ball which went into the air behind him, into Hamer's hands, the Beaver Falls right end, who was downed on the 27 yard line. Then another fling from Barry to Ciotte over the goal line ended the scoring for the day. Ciotte's placement kick failed, with the score being Beaver Falls 18, Ellwood City 0.

Subs Get Chance.

For the remainder of the game Coach Heckathorne sent in numerous substitutions. Coach Gills made two at this time. One of the changes was sending in Kennedy at quarterback and bringing Wilson to full. Ellwood resorted to the air at this time in an effort to score, but proved unsuccessful. Beaver Falls also attempted several passes and completed one for 30 yards just before the contest ended.

Local fans were disappointed in the sudden change in the game at the opening of the second half. The local had outplayed the visitors in the first two periods, although the latter did have six first downs to Ellwood's four. Ellwood acquired more yardage. Their defense was a spectacle to watch against the Tigers who found it rather difficult to gain ground. The third quarter was barely under way when McKim, Ellwood left tackle, who had played his first game since he injured his back in the Union township contest, was taken from the game upon being injured again. On his heels followed Mike Paal, who was playing a splendid game, but was taken out because of an injury. Coach Gills was compelled to put in the injured Vogt to fill McKim's shoes and the inexperienced Gorzkowski to replace Paal. Henceforth, Carter, Beaver Falls quarterback, directed all plays on that side of the line, which functioned nearly every time.

Passes Fail.

The locals had depended much on their aerial game Saturday but Frisk, Ellwood's star passer, somehow failed to live up to expectations and was later replaced by Segedi. "Spungo" Vanderillo was the best ground gainer for the Ellwood team and also made some beautiful tackles in backing up the line. Bill Pander has developed into a fine defensive halfback. His work was notable in backing up the line. The stellar work of Caesar Butler, colored youth who was recently promoted from the third team to the first, was especially noticeable throughout the game. It was Butler's work that kept Ellwood's left side of the line difficult to pass. He smeared off-tackle plays time after time. Paired with Captain Sam Neff they are the best ends developed here in a long time. Neff played his usual fine game and was responsible for several fine gains as the receiver of passes. The work of Allan Wilson on right guard was also noteworthy.

Homestead Next.

Ciotte, the visiting teams' fullback, was the outstanding player of the day. He scored all of Beaver Falls' three touchdowns, did most of the passing and gained the most ground. It was difficult to check this man as Barry, his teammate, also threw passes to deceive the Ellwood boys. Schaubhut also performed well. Captain Walton, Hamer and Brunsnsky were outstanding in the line.

Beaver Falls acquired 12 first downs to Ellwood's eight and completed three out of ten passes to the locals' four out of 13.

Ellwood will play Homestead high school next Saturday afternoon at 2:30 at Lincoln field.

Viaduct And Second Street Completed

Plans Being Made For Formal Opening Of Ellwood Improvement

ELLWOOD CITY, Oct. 12.—Formal opening exercises for the new Second street viaduct are being planned by city officials. The last brick in the paving of Second street, the viaduct approach, was laid Saturday afternoon. A layer of pitch with sand was immediately poured over to protect the road for a period.

The bridge was formally opened for traffic this morning at 10:30 and the cars of Borough Manager Lowell W. Monroe and Fred Robuck were the first to travel over it since its completion. The northern part of Second street is already being used.

The supports of the bridge were laid last fall and it was finished in the spring. The remainder of the time was used in building four huge walls and paving Second street. Incidentally the street is one of the best and widest in town.

The viaduct is very modern, divided off into two sections by a steel fence. On each end of the construction is situated a concrete pole with a red light. Wide side walks have been made for pedestrians. The bridge is lighted at night by many tall lamp posts.

When the final touches are completed the new construction will be one of the most beautiful spots in town. It will also dispose of a grave traffic danger. It will eliminate the danger of traveling over the Fourth street crossing. The State Highway Department is making plans to reroute traffic enroute to Pittsburgh and points nearby, over the viaduct, which is a more direct road. No schools will be passed this way thus giving more safety to children.

Testing Hide-and-Seek Gun

Scene: The U. S. Army proving ground at Aberdeen, Md. Cast: Members of the Army Ordnance Association, in 13th annual meeting. Time: The present—and a very noisy one. Artillerymen had just fired one of the 14-inch coast defense guns mounted on a disappearing carriage as this picture was snapped. The gun is capable of firing a 1,560-pound projectile fully 14 miles. Note the spectators stuffing their ears to deaden the sound.

They Hold Germany's Fate

In the hands of these five men a great share of the fate of Germany now rests. Heinrich Bruening (upper right), Chancellor and Foreign Minister, charged with the formation of a new cabinet, selected Hermann Dietrich (lower left) as Vice-Chancellor and Finance Minister; Gen. Wilhelm Groener (lower right), as Minister of War and Interior, and Dr. Kurt Joel (upper left), as Minister of Justice. If this group of men falls before the Reichstag, Adolf Hitler (center), National Socialist (Fascist) leader, may take over the reins of Government on the request of President von Hindenburg.

Look Out Below!

We'll all have to be looking skyward soon if experiments being conducted at Wright Field, Dayton, O., are successful. Engineers there are testing the feasibility of dropping airplanes by parachute and this photo shows a model plane descending attached to an eighty foot 'chute. The future may see aerial trains with "cars" being dropped in this manner along the route.

Pioneers With Different Ideas

Two men who helped make the glamorous history of the West, but in far different ways, met recently in surroundings much more peaceful than either was accustomed to 40 years ago when both were young and exceedingly active in their chosen work. Captain Thomas Rynning (right), famous law enforcement officer of the early days, is shown in a reminiscent mood with Emmett Dalton, last of the notorious Dalton gang of outlaws. They met when both were guests at a Los Angeles social affair.

Ex-President Of Reichsbank Faces Arrest In Berlin

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Faces Arrest Result Of Financial Speech

By EDWARD L. DEUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—Intense indignation, culminating in demands for his arrest, followed today in the wake of a sensational speech by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank, at a meeting of nationist and national socialist leaders at Bad Harzburg, Brunswick.

The criticism was directed mainly against his charge that Germany's financial situation was far worse than the world had been led to believe and his allegation that the Reichsbank had published "untruthful" reports about the country's finances.

The speech prompted the Reichsbank to issue an official communique denying it had ever "withheld information" but admitted the truth of Dr. Schacht's assertion that the country's foreign debts were higher than listed in the recent statement of the Bank of International Settlements at Basle, Switzerland.

Not Deceiving.

"This is not due to a desire to deceive the public," the communique stated, "but because of the difficulty of calculating exactly how much Germany owes."

The statement also admitted that the Reichsbank portfolio contains not only bills drawn for goods sold but also bills of exchange which make up a portion of the gold and foreign exchange currency coverage.

"I said no more than the admissions contained in the official communique," Dr. Schacht told International News Service. "I cannot understand why it caused a sensation."

The demand for Dr. Schacht's arrest "on charges of high treason" was made by the Republican press. It was understood the cabinet was deliberating ways and means of placing him under arrest, and prohibited German newspapers from publishing the full text of the speech under penalty of indefinite suppression.

In spite of this censorship, however, the communist newspaper Montags Zeitung published a lengthy report of the proceedings with the glaring headline: "Schacht says the Reichsbank is bankrupt."

What's a Pinch, More or Less?

Edith Berkman, "Red Flame" Communist leader, apparently is as carefree as a new-born babe in her commonplace surroundings between two burly bluecoats. This is only her second arrest in a week in Lawrence, Mass., so what's a pinch, more or less? Edith is shown being escorted to jail after she made an attempt to exhort striking textile mill operatives in Lawrence. Efforts are to be made to snuff out the "Red Flame" by deportation.

Community Chest Campaign Oct. 19 to 24 Give This Year as Never Before

HANEY'S ON THE PUBLIC SQUARE

Community Chest Campaign Oct. 19 to 24 Give This Year as Never Before

Our Public Schools

By S. S. MYERS

While traveling about over six counties of western Pennsylvania I have recently heard many complaints about the high cost of our public schools. I presume this is due, in part, to the present depression, but largely to short sightedness. At any rate it is ill advised.

In one town of about five thousand population where I visited lately I was talking with the editor of the only newspaper published there and was complimenting the town on its excellent school building.

"Yes," said the editor, "it's a fine building but it's a colossal mistake. We put too much money into it and now it's a great burden on the taxpayer. We could have got along with a building half its cost. Another thing, we're paying our teachers too high a salary, and I'm in favor of cutting them down. All other salaries and wages are being cut."

I didn't take time to argue with him, because it's no use to argue with a small town editor. But I wondered if he could be made to realize that the future citizens of the United States are now in our public schools.

There are something over 21,000,000 pupils in the public schools who are now being trained for future citizenship. They are the most valuable asset this country has today. Therefore the responsibility resting upon the teachers is something tremendous!

In comparison with other professions there is none so poorly paid as the public school teacher, and there are none upon which rests such great responsibility. They are developing and shaping the character of the future citizenship of the United States and it depends largely upon them as to what that citizenship shall be.

There was a time when any one who had a smattering knowledge of history, geography, grammer and arithmetic could teach school. But that time is past. Much is required of the teacher of today. He or she must undergo a thorough course of training, not only in the subjects to be taught, but also in the psychology of child training and the educational value of the things to be taught.

The educational idea of today is no longer based upon the three R's, but rather upon the three H's, and demands that the individual be brought into a full realization of all the powers and capabilities of Head, Heart and Hand, and that there be developed within him a desire to use these powers and capabilities in the service of the community in which he lives.

So it will be seen that the task of the teacher is no ordinary one—that it requires a high degree of intelligence and a sympathetic understanding of human nature in general and child life in particular. Such persons are desrving of more pay than they really get. The demand upon them is great and their services should not be lightly estimated.

A school boad member at another place remarked to me that they were considering cutting down expenses by increasing the size of the classes and dispensing with some of the teachers. He said that one of the primary teachers had sixty pupils in her room and seemed to be getting along all right, and he was unable to see why other teachers couldn't do so too.

I wanted to inform him that he was unfit for a place on the board of education, but I felt like Josh Billings, when he said: "If a cow won't let down her milk there's no use to pick up the stool and hit her with it and tell her she's a blamed fool, because she won't believe it anyway."

The crowding of classes is about as bad as anything that could happen to a school. Under such conditions it is impossible for the teacher to give the individual attention necessary. It is from such crowded conditions that come the misfits of society—the criminals, gunmen, and the occupants of our jails and penitentiaries. It's mighty poor economy.

If we are interested in the future welfare of our country—if the public schools are to fulfill their high mission, we must pay something near what they are worth. When we begin to cut the salaries of teachers and crowd too many pupils into one class we are taking a step backward for which we will eventually suffer.

Furthermore, the little one room school, with a little antiquated equipment and a little one horse teacher with a little bit of learning which she dispenses in a little way to little boys and girls, is a thing of the past. We must have modern school buildings well equipped for the work to be done, if we are to progress as a nation.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

It takes only one bottle of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt's prescription—HEM-ROID—to end itching, bleeding, protruding piles. This internal remedy acts quickly even in old, stubborn cases. HEM-ROID succeeds because it heals and restores the affected parts and removes blood congestion in the lower bowel—the cause of piles. Only an internal medicine can do this, that's why salves and cutting fail. Eckerd's and New Castle Drug Co says HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile misery or money back.

How To Get Relief From Catarrh

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness, or head noises, go to New Castle Drug, Eckerd's or your druggist and get 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength); take this home, add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to make, tastes pleasant and costs little. Every one who has catarrh should give this treatment a trial. You will probably find it is just what you need.

Westminster Is Swamped

Lawther's Team Loses To Allegheny College Saturday 39-7

METHODISTS SHOW SCORING POWER

(Special To The News)

MEADVILLE, Pa., Oct. 12.—If learning from one's mistakes helps any, Coach John D. Lawther's green Westminster college football team gained a year's experience Saturday afternoon here on Montgomery Field as the veteran Allegheny college team swamped the Titans by a 39-7 score.

Capitalizing on the mistakes of the Titans, most of whom were playing their first big college game, the Gators scored four of their six touchdowns more easily than they should. But two of the Methodist scores were actually earned from scrimmage.

The two teams battled to a 0-0 score for the first period, though it was evident that the power in Berger, Garbark, and Varanon, heavy veterans in the Methodist backfield, could not be stopped for long. With the ball on the Titan 46-yard line as the second period opened, Varano tossed a pass to Garbark who raced for a touchdown. Varano's placement was blocked. Score: Allegheny 6, Westminster 0.

Later in the second quarter, with the ball on the Gator 40, the Methodists went down the field for the second earned touchdown. Berger threw a 15-yard pass to Varano, Garbark picked up nine yards, Berger's pass to Garbark added 10, and Garbark's pass to Berger was good for the touchdown. Varano's placement was good. Score: Allegheny 13, Westminster 0.

At the start of the second half, the Titans opened up an offensive drive that was not to be denied. Siljander kicked off to Varano who was downed on the Gator 25-yard line. Berger picked up four yards. Allegheny was then penalized 15 yards for holding and on the next play received a five-yard penalty for off-side play, placing the ball on the Methodist nine-yard mark.

Berger's punt was taken by Siljander on the Allegheny 35 and was carried back to the Methodist 17. Sillman picked up six, Young made two, Sillman added three for first down. Siljander was stopped at the line, Sillman made two, Stples made four, and Young skirted left end for the touchdown. Sillman's placement was good. Score: Allegheny 13; Westminster 7.

From this point on it looked as if the Titans should add another score, but a blocked punt a few minutes later so upset the inexperienced Lawthermen that Allegheny scored two touchdowns before the quarter was over.

With the ball on his own 24-yard line, Young attempted to put out of danger, but Cort, Allegheny end, blocked the punt, it was fumbled by two or three players, and then was picked up by Captain Garbark of the Methodists who ran 20 yards for the score. Varano's placement was good. Score: Allegheny 20; Westminster 7.

Berger, later in the third period, intercepted one of Siljander's passes and ran to the Titan 20. From here, Garbark and Varano took the ball to the goal line and Varano took it over. Varano's placement was good. Score: Allegheny 27; Westminster 7.

Two misplays in the fourth quarter paved the way for two more touchdowns for Allegheny. Berger, after a few plays, punted to the Titan two-yard line where the ball was downed by an alert Gator end. Shaffer punted out from behind his own goal line to the Titan 30. Garbark tossed a 13-yard pass to Berger, Garbark hit the line for seven, Varano made six, and Berger took the ball over for the score. Varano's placement was wide. Score: Allegheny 33; Westminster 7.

Toward the end of the final quarter, Shaffer took a punt from Robblee, substitute for Balser, on the Titan 19-yard line. On the first play, Robblee intercepted Michaels' pass on the 27-yard line and ran for a touchdown. Allegheny was penalized 15 yards for holding in the try for extra point. A second try via a forward was knocked down. Score: Allegheny 39; Westminster 7.

Allegheny made 16 first downs to four by the Titans. The Methodists tried 14 forward passes, five of which were completed and four of which were intercepted by the

New York University's defeat of Georgetown Saturday boosted N. Y. U. into the lead in team scoring among major colleges in the East. The Violets have 153 points, Columbia 149, Army 147 and Syracuse 143. The actual scoring lead in the East, however, belongs to Davis & Elkins, playing a minor college schedule this year. Davis & Elkins has 173 points for four games.

Two "mystery men", Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera, will stroll into the ring at Ebbett's field, Brooklyn, tonight to fight 15 rounds. There has been a lot of skepticism about each. Carnera will weigh about 270 pounds, but Sharkey rules favorite. Carnera has bowled over many set-ups. Sharkey was held to a draw by Mickey Walker recently.

Mose Butch and Johnny Datto are listed for a 10 round engagement at Pittsburgh tonight. Butch, a southpaw, recently beat Jackie Rodgers. The Filipino doesn't like to box southpaws. Ross Fields and Willie Davies, flyweights, have been matched for a 10-round bout at Cleveland Friday night. They have fought twice, with honors even.

Louis Bush, sophomore of the Massachusetts Aggies football team, holds the high individual score of the East by making 56 points this season. He has turned in nine touchdowns and two extra points after touchdown. Winters of Davis & Elkins has a score of 54 points and Wabbles Hewitt of Columbia is in third place with 52 points.

Discoverer Of "Pepper" Martin Reveals Secrets

Watched Martin Play With Greenville, Texas, And Immediately Signed Him Up

By CHARLES BARRETT
(Scout For the St. Louis Cardinals Who Discovered Johnny "Pepper" Martin And Recommended His Purchase By The World's Champions.)
(Copyright, 1931, By International News Service)

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 12.—It was upon my recommendation in 1925 that the Cardinals paid $2500 for Johnny "Pepper" Martin and added $200 a few days later to get his immediate release from the Greenville, Texas, club.

I didn't drop into Greenville looking for Martin, because I had never heard of him. I was just cruising around in small minor league territory and Greenville was one of the ports of call. That was late in the summer of 1925.

I just went out to the park to see the game and look over the athletes. When I am scouting I take three things into consideration as regards a player—first his throwing, second his speed and third his batting and fielding ability.

Good Throwing Arm

Martin was playing second base that day. I saw him race over to a spot back of the bag, pick up a ball and shoot it like a rifle shot to first. An inning or two later he repeated it. Every time he let go of that ball I knew I was looking at a fellow who had a mighty good throwing arm.

By his runs for balls he showed me that he had speed. I know he was a "tryer," one of those follows that is in there giving the best he has all the time because he has a great love for the game.

Three times during that game, with none on base, Martin ran into the outfield, twice into the right and once into center, and when the ball landed in the fielder's hands Martin was right under him ready to make the catch if he fumbled, that type of player is rare and I know that this fellow was a diamond in the rough.

He poled out a couple of hits that first afternoon and stole a base. He fielded splendidly that next afternoon and did some great hitting. I was "sold on him right then and immediately wired Branch Rickey about this 21 year old youngster who had the "r kings". He replied Authorizing me to make the purchase and I closed the deal with L. K. Wise, president of the club, for $2500.

Originally, the idea was that Martin was to continue with Greenville until the end of the season in that league. But I found that our Ft. Smith, Arkansas, club was in need of a substitute infielder at once and by offering Wise $200 additional we gained immediate possession of Martin and sent him to Ft. Smith, where he finished the year.

Jaworski Stars As Union High Defeats Scienceville High

Union High Halfback Scores Two Touchdowns In Fast Game At Scotland Lane Field

Scienceville Scores On Long Pass—Union High Unbeaten In Four Starts

Union high school football team added another victory to their season's record last Saturday by handing the strong Scienceville high team a 13 to 6 setback. The game was played at the Scotland Lane field.

The defeat by the locals of the Ohioans avenges a defeat suffered at Scienceville last year. The Boyd coached Union team has yet to be defeated in four starts, and would have an unblemished record but for a tie with Ellwood City high.

The Scienceville line was unable to stop the Union backfield men. A fast aerial attack gave Union a touchdown. Union tallied in the second quarter after coming within the shadows of the visitors goal line in the first period only to lose the ball on a fumble. Union's tally in the second period was made by Jaworski on a delayed end run from the 10-yard line after Union had driven the ball down the field with a series of fine plays. J. Augustyn hit the line for the extra-point. The half ended with Union leading 7 to 0.

Jaworski Is Star.

Union added the second touchdown in the third period when Denney intercepted a Scienceville pass, and Union began a steady march down the field, making three first downs with Ammons, Jaworski, Denney and Augustyn doing the ball carrying. Union gained the ball on the 5-yard line after Scienceville drew a penalty. Jaworski attempted a fake drop-kick and then took the ball through the center of the line for the second touchdown. The try for extra-point was no good.

Scienceville started an aerial attack in the fourth period that netted them their touchdown when Butler threw a long pass to Miller and he raced 40 yards for the touchdown. The try for extra-point was stopped.

Union was alert following the touchdown and Scienceville tried a few more passes when play was resumed, only to have them intercepted. Union had the ball on the visitors 20-yard line when the game ended. Union high will play Mars next Saturday at Mars.

Sacred Heart Gridders Romp Off Field Easy Winners In Second Game Of Season

Flashing a fast attack the Sacred Hearts eleven smothered the Oakland eleven Saturday afternoon on Glasser's field. The final score was 32-0.

Bongivengo, Mooney and Delone played well on the line for the winners. Chill and DiMuccio looked impressive in the backfield. Grove City Next Westminster Foe

Rivals To Meet At New Wilmington On Saturday Afternoon

(Special to The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Oct. 12—Rivalry dating back to 1893 will be resumed Saturday when Grove City and Westminster meet in a football game at New Wilmington which will be the feature of the Titan alumni homecoming celebration.

The Grovers are favorites in the game, but the Westminster team will be in a fighting mood following the 39-7 setback suffered at Allegheny Saturday, and will probably hold the Crimson to a low score.

Coaches Lawther and Dart realize that Coach Berry of the Grovers has another strong team. The Titans were able to defeat Slippery Rock by a slim 6-0 score, whereas the Grovers won over the Teachers by a 34-0 count.

Westminster's "freshman" outfit, however, learned a lot in Saturday's game with Allegheny, and will be in better shape for the Crimson battle. In all probability, Leyshock, center: Harper, halfback, and Flynn quarterback, will be available after being on the injured list for a couple weeks. No serious injuries were received in the Allegheny game.

While Grove City has lost Bache for a few weeks, Carnahan, a senior is an excellent center and will not weaken the Grover line any. Bloker, a halfback will probably play center for the Titans with Leyshock held in reserve.

W. & J. Preparing For Tough Battle

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 12.—Washington and Jefferson's grid team practiced today in preparation for the game Saturday with Western Maryland without the services of Stew Wilson, fullback, and rated one of the best backfield men in the district, because of a leg injury. Wilson, who was hurt in the early moments of the encounter with Marshall College last Saturday, will be on the bench for at least two weeks.

Sharkey-Carnera Battle Tonight

Boston Slugger Confident That Italian Man Mountain Will Prove Easy

By HYPE IGOE
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Singular Jack Sharkey of Boston is going to tackle a job tonight which everybody over the length and breadth of the land vows he has been trying to duck.

He would punch Signor Primo Carnera into the replica of a large, healthy wheel of Swiss cheese. That was Sharkey's original intent. He has the same jolly notion cooked up for tonight on Ebbets Field.

Might old hypus arise to reassure the boxing lovers that Jack Sharkey has no lurking fear to the issue tonight! Never mind the talk about his wanting to run into his little dark woods and hide every time he heard big bootsie's name mentioned. He doesn't think Carnera is a push-over, mind you, since the Signor will stand considerable shoving.

Sharkey Confident.

But Sharkey tells me that he can whip the big Pizan. We sat together, in his room this morning and this is what the eccentric one had to say about tonight's fistic row:

"Hype," he began, "this fellow is far below his usual weight that isn't an indication of his having torn his heart out training. On the contrary, it is a sure sign that he has torn it out worrying about Signor Sharkey. It is the first time that he has met a fighter of class in which he is traveling strictly on his own.

"Let me tell you about these big fellows. Organically Carnera must be deficient. If he can out-wit, out-talk, out-smart a twelve year old child, I lose the box of cigars.

"Big and wide as he is, his vitals are a larger target. Being larger they naturally absorb more pain. Never mind his jaw. It might be made of chilled steel but it is a lantern jaw."

I picked Sharkey to win, knock Primo out, from the first day the bout was suggested. The odds at that time would have been 10 to 1. They're only 7 to 5 today. That doesn't mean that Sharkey has gone back at that rate. It simply means that the dilly-dallying about bringing Jack and the giant together, has given the Carnera fans time to buck up. Money talks.

Bessemer High Team Defeats Evans City 34-6

(Special To The News)

BESSEMER, Pa., Oct. 12.—Evans City high school football team bowed to Bessemer high here Saturday afternoon by a score of 34 to 6. It was the second victory of the season for Bessemer, Scienceville having been defeated one week ago, 19 to 0. Evans City's eleven was lighter than Bessemer's team.

Evans City defended the west goal and kicked off. The kick was returned to Evans Citys 35 yard line. After a series of line plays which gained three first downs, Bessemer lost the ball on a fumble and Evans City punted to Bessemer's 30 yard line.

Stanley gained 50 yards on two plunges and the quarter ended with the ball in Bessemer's possession on Evans City's 40 yard line. At the opening of the second quarter Bessemer punted to Evans City's 15 yard line and the punt was returned.

After line plunges which netted Bessemer 50 yards Stanley took the ball over the line for the first touchdown. The attempt for point failed. On the kickoff Evans City returned the ball to their own 40 yard line. A pass, Cooperman to Painter, got Evans City 15 yards.

Plevnic intercepted a pass and reeled off 65 yards for a touchdown. Stanley kicked the extra point which gave Bessemer a lead of 13 to 0. Bessemer kicked over the Evans City goal line and the ball was brought out to the 20 yard line.

A 20 yard pass, Cooperman to Painter, gave Evans City a first down but a second forward pass was intercepted by Stanley who was dropped in his tracks as the whistle blew for the end of the half.

Increase Points

At the start of the third quarter, Evans City kicked off to Bessemer's 40 yard line and on the first play Stanley broke through center and tore off 60 yards for a touchdown. It was the second long run of the game and the spectators were in an uproar. Stanley then kicked the extra point, putting the score 20 to 0.

After the kickoff there were some fumbles and Evans City kicked to their own 38 yard line. Bessemer made several first downs and Stanley plunged the ball over and his toe annexed another extra point making the score 27 to 0.

Bessemer kicked to Evans City and on their fumble Pezzulo recovered the ball for Bessemer on Evans City's eight yard line at the end of the third quarter. Evans City held for downs but a pass netted them 20 yards. On a reverse play Cooperman got away for a 40 yard run.

He put the ball on Bessemer's 20 yard line and after a series of end runs Besnecker, fullback, plunged over the line for Evans City's first and only touchdown of the game which made the score 27 to 6 as the attempt for extra point failed.

Evans City kicked off to Bessemer's 40 yard line. A pass, Plevnic to Stanley was good for 45 yards and a touchdown. It was the third long run for Bessemer and an extra point was annexed by Stanley's toe. The score, 34 to 6.

The game ended soon after. The contest developed that Bessemer is gaining strength as the season proceeds. Evans City was outclassed excepting in a portion of the fourth period when long end runs and Besnecker's plunge gave them the only touchdown they got.

World's Series Play Netted Famous Martin Almost As Much As Regular Salary

(International News Service)

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 12.—After taking a swift glance at his checking account, Johnny "Pepper" Martin announced today he would like to play in a world series every fall.

Under his contract the Cardinal flash received $4,500 for going through approximately 125 routine season games. His share of the world series spoils amounted to almost that much—$4,484.24.

SPYING ON SPORTS

BY WILLIAM RITT

Central Press Sports Editor

Put this where you may find it about, say, Dec. 1: Old Pop Pigskin will prove within the next two months the king of all sports, financially, depression or no depression.

Baseball this year took it on the chin plenty—from the tall weed, small salary wheels right up to the major leagues. Boxing gate receipts deflated like punctured Zeppelins. The major pro basketball league blew up and the top hockey circuit suffered enough reverses last spring that it will get under way this fall with at least one city missing. Even wrestling, which early in the year enjoyed considerable favor, seems to have run into a lot of air pockets.

But football—that uproar you heard last Saturday was plenty of your neighbors gathered to gaze at the festivities which marked the opening of the touchdown season.

* * *

If there is a depression — and boy, don't WE know there is one!—it's absent at football stadium gates. The turnstiles are clicking a golden symphony of prosperity and the Big Games remain to be played.

Run your eye over these opening day figures:

St. Mary's-Southern California, 75,000; Michigan vs. Central State and State Normal 70,000; Nebraska-Northwestern, 40,000; Yale-Maine, 25,000. St. Mary's second game, with California, drew 70,000.

Those are crowds which attended opening games in which the winner was in doubt. In other contests which involved big schools versus little ones, just "warm-up" contests, the crowds were considerably smaller but very gratifying considering the poor entertainment offered, the too-warm-for-football weather and other adverse conditions.

* * *

Army crammed its tiny stadium at West Point on successive Saturdays with the Cadets matched against far inferior opponents. Sixteen thousand paid to see New York beat West Virginia Wesleyan. Eighteen thousand saw Fordham against West Viringia. The same number saw Notre Dame smack over Indiana.

Other "warm-up" contests throughout the country drew from 10,000 to 25,000.

If the public pours out in such numbers to view the meaningless, early season scuffles what will be the attendance figures when the big Games are reached? If you only knew you'd build up a fat headache worrying because a fellow can't buy himself a nice, successful college eleven.

Scarazzos Beat Shenango 4 To 1

Game Deadlocked Saturday Until Gennock's Single Scores Fahey

LARGE CROWD SEES GAME FOR CHARITY

Scarazzos defeated Shenango Pottery, 4-1, in a benefit game for the Community Chest at Centennial field Saturday afternoon. The crowd filled the grandstand. The teams were deadlocked at 1-1 until the fifth inning, when Gennock's single scored Fahey. Scarazzo scored two more runs in the ninth.

Paul McCullough pitched the first six innings for Shenango, while Semler hurled the entire game for Scarazzo. While he was on the mound McCullough allowed five hits, but the breaks were against him. Smolik relieved him and allowed three hits. Semler held Shenango to a total of seven hits.

Scarazzo was first to chalk up a run, which came in the second. Earl sent a hot grounder over third base which Sankey McCullough couldn't get to and the hit was good for a double. Fahey slammed a single between right and center and Earl scored.

With one down in the fourth W. Soho batted for Shenango and walked. On Scaglioni's out he advanced to second. Maslyk singled over second and W. Soho scored, deadlocking the score. A break came in the fifth, however, and from then on Scarazzos couldn't be headed off.

Fahey came up for Scarazzo in the fatal fifth and singled to center. Thompson fanned and when Fahey ran to second J. Soho failed to cover the bag and Scaglioni's throw went into center. Fahey went to third. Gennock singled between first and second and Fahey scored with what proved to be the winning run.

Scarazzo's failed to put a man on base in the sixth, but W. Soho singled for Shenango in the last of the sixth, but he died on bases. Smolnik relieved McCullough in the first of the seventh.

In the ninth with one down Earl found Smolnik's range and singled to left. Fahey, who had three hits, grounded to Fruit, who let it get through him and Byak advanced to third on the error. Thompson doubled to center, scoring Earl and Fahey with the last runs of the game.

The benefit game preliminaries were spectacular. The Ben Franklin junior high school band, directed by Miss Evea Coulter, marched from the American Legion Home through the central part of the city. Jack Dougall, the well-known announcer, megaphoned the purpose of the parade.

Automobile concerns were waiting when the band returned to the Legion Home. They were in charge of Frank Racciopo. General Chairman C. W. Read had them transported to the baseball field, where they paraded about the diamond. They drew quite an ovation.

Immediately before the game started the band played "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and the spectators stood up until the piece was finished. Umpire Jones called play ball and the players took their positions on the field, Scarazzos going to bat.

Cardinals Take Final Game Of Series 4 To 2—Grimes Winning Pitcher

Earnshaw Falters In Two Innings And Cards Score, Martin Fails To Get Hit

By FRANK G. MENKE
International News Service Sports Editor

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, ST. LOUIS, Oct. 12.—Swing the spotlight this way, please, and let it beam down upon the home town Cardinals, new champions of baseball universe.

They won the seventh and final duel for the highest honor in baldom here Saturday afternoon 4 to 2 but not before their rooters almost died from apoplexy due to a 9th inning rally by the Athletics.

Luck blessed these cardinals in the last inning in the guise of an Alphonse-Gaston act put on by Simmons and Williams. They let two easy looking putouts fall between them for Cardinal hits and the St. Louis lads promptly cashed in on them. After that Watkins cinched the series with a home run that scored high ahead of him.

Earnshaw Off Stride

George Earnshaw wasn't his peerless self out there this afternoon and was in difficulty quite often during the six innings. Burleigh Grimes pitched a magnificent game for seven innings and then tired.

He struggled through the eighth without the wreckage of his whitewashing hops but in the ninth he collapsed and Bill Hallahan was rushed to the rescue. Bill saved the ball game, Bill plus Johnny Martin, who made the final putout with a great running catch that for a few moments looked like a hit that would tie the game.

The crowd was the smallest that has seen a world series in more than two decades. The grandstands was only dotted with inhabitants.

INTRODUCING

Coach "Rip" Miller

By JACK SORDS

copyright, 1931, Central Press Ass'n.

Navy goes through the 1931 season, pepped for its opponents with the service school's first full dose of that highly lauded grid tonic—the so-called Rockne system of play.

Called to the helm of the Middie school's football ship is Edgar E. (Rip) Miller who shone at tackle on the Notre Dame teams of 1922, 1923 and 1924. That last year saw Rip a member of the famed "Seven Miles," which broke ground so beautifully for the even more famous "Four Horsemen."

Though this is Navy's first year with a Notre Dame man in the top coaching seat, Miller has been identified with Navy teams for several years. After graduation he helped coach Indiana in 1925, coached the Navy line in 1926 and 1927. For 1929, Miller went to Cincinnati to coach the line of Xavier university. However, he returned the following fall to become again line coach and assistant to Coach Bill Ingram.

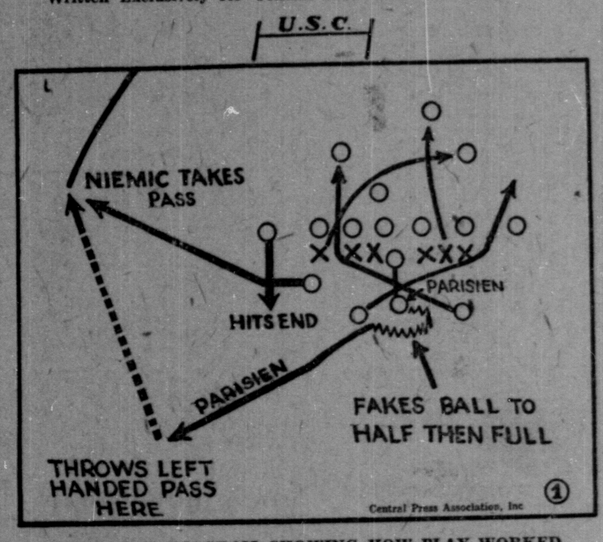
When California called Ingram away from the Annapolis eleven, late last year, Miller was promoted to head man. He immediately took Christy Flanagan and Johnny O'Brien as his aids.

With the Miller-Flanagan-O'Brien combination on the job. Navy followers expect to see the Middies this season display some of the shift, wing back attack and short kick formation styles of play, with which these three are so familiar.

Rockne's Best Plays

By COACH EDWARD (SLIP) MADIGAN

COACH OF ST. MARY'S COLLEGE, CALIFORNIA
Written Exclusively for Central Press and New Castle News



MADIGAN'S DIAGRAM SHOWING HOW PLAY WORKED

NUMBER ONE

Knute Rockne's record at Notre Dame is proof that he was a great football coach. What made him great? A preponderance of material? A long series of "breaks"? The system of plays he used? Psychology? Strategy?

It was perhaps a combination of all these. Rockne got the breaks. Like his greatest human football creation, the immortal George Gipp, everything he touched, in a football way, turned to gold.

But "Rock" blazed the trail for most of the breaks in a game. By his imagination he could picture a situation while his Fighting Irish were in action on the field. He could see what was going to happen before it dawned on the other fellow.

Never was this genius in Rockne more exemplified than in the Notre Dame-U. S. C. game in 1926 at Los Angeles, which I am making the basis of my first article.

This game was Notre Dame's introduction to Trojan football. It was also Troy's introduction to Rockne.

In the final moment of play Notre Dame snatched a one-point victory from the Trojans by means of a left-handed forward pass, hurled by an unsung second string quarterback. And as I sat on the bench that November afternoon I marveled, as the drama unfolded, at Rockne's imagination, his intuition and the strategy it brought into play.

* * *

To get a picture of the winning play I'll go back for a moment to what had happened earlier in the game.

Reilly, Notre Dame back, had gone around end, per schedule, for 20 yards and a touchdown. But "Dynamite Don" Williams of the Trojans started a series of terrible inside and off-side line plunges. Rockne threw guard after guard into the game but he couldn't stop Williams.

As a result Notre Dame started the fourth quarter trailing, 12 to 7.

There were less than three minutes to go. Out on the field was Red Edwards, Rockne's quarterback, standing around with his hands on his hips reflecting the demoralized condition of his team.

"Humph!" grunted Rockne "We're beat as far as Edwards is concerned. Parisien! Think you can give 'em a couple of left-handed flips?"

"It's a cinch, coach, it's a cinch," came back Parisien, impetuous by nature.

Followed a moment of muffled instructions from Rockne. Out came Edwards and in went Art Parisien with what was left of the ball game

* * *

Carrying out instructions, Parisien called time out, went into a huddle and talked fight. Parisien was under orders to throw lef-handed passes until one clicked. Three of them failing, Notre Dame kicked and with only a minute to go the Trojans generously kicked back on the first down to Notre Dame's best scoring territory, its own 40-yard line.

"Here's where we beat 'em by one point—the best way to win a ball game," Rockne said, talking to himself mostly, I believe.

On the first play Parisien faded back and passed to Johnny Niemic. But the young quarterback was too eager. No deception. He betrayed his play to the Trojan backs. They refused to be sucked in.

Niemic completed the pass all right and it gained 30 yards. But it failed to produce a score, and that was what Rockne had banked heavily on. It proved a costly maneuver, for Niemis was chased far to the left and brought down within five yards of the left side lines.

* * *

From this point on the field it would have been utterly impossible to make a left-handed pass good for a score on the next play, which time demanded.

Rockne's idea about left-handing the Trojans to death had to be abandoned for one play at least.

Widely circulated reports on the coast that Parisien was an ambidextrous passer were not denied by Rockne before the game.

So Parisien took the ball on the next play and ran away out flat to his right with the ball in his right hand, as if looking for an eligible receiver. He was downed without gain before he could get the ball away, but he had carried it over toward the other side of the field near the 30-yard line.

The desire impression seemed to have been created. Parisien could run well to his right, so he probably could pass with his right hand. As a matter of fact, he couldn't lob the ball 10 yards with his right hand.

* * *

The Trojans took time out to decide what to look for on the second down. Out came the Notre Dame team from the huddle, and it shifted for a play that started identically like the one Reily had scored on earlier.

The ball was snapped to Parisien. He faked giving it to Reilly for a crisscross. In charged the Trojan ends, followed by Laranetta and Williams to stop Reilly. The play was perfectly timed and executed. Instead of Reilly getting the ball, Parisien flipped a southpaw toss down and across the field near the goal line, and the Notre Dame carrier stepped over for a touchdown with no one close. The game was over, 13 to 12.

"That was a great finish," I remarked to Rockne on the way to the dressing room.

'Not important, but sure interesting," was his reply.

A few days prior to the game Rockne had halted the train on the Arizona desert en route to the coast and perfected the play that he knew would beat the Trojans in a pinch.

Another great Rockne play will appear soon.

Cardinals Won Due To Clever Work On Bases

"Pepper Martin Put New Life In Cardinals With His Daring Speed On Paths

BRAND NEW GAME HAS RESULTED

By Frank G. Menke
International News Service Sports Editor

The departed world series of 1931 willed to various parties identified with a game known as baseball quite a few things to mull over during the onrushing wintertime.

There is the money problem, for example. Should the powers give the proceeds to starving Armenians or thirsty Bulgarians, should they let all the boys and girls in gratis—or should they carry on as is, and always have somebody indicted in the public mind on the charge of prolonging the show so as to fatten owner's bankrolls?

No series ever went the limit without creating suspicion, and this last one provoked bitter resentment as well. The good people in St. Louis felt that Gabby Street could have won the sixth brawl and ended the festival right there if he had sent Burleigh Grimes or Bill Hallahan to do the throwing.

Fans Score Street

But Gabby elected Paul Derringer, a young pitcher, victim of nerves and a fellow who had been knocked off the hillside in his first outing. Immediately there was a great wailing from the multitude and the grinding of calorie crunchers and the hissing charge:

"He ain't trying hard to win this one: he's aiming to let it go the limit so that the club owners can pick up another $160,000 or $165,000.

The Cards lost, as expected. And then the home towners turned on them. Only a trifle more than 20,000 saw the final shooting match, although there was room for 40,000. Of course, the folks wene momentarily daffy when the Cards won the game and the title, but today they have relapsed once more into a mood of condemnation about that sixth game, "which they played only for the magnates."

The American League disciples can learn from the series that henceforth, if they wish to remain among the chosen people, they must proceed to use their legs and test out throwing arms. No longer can they cling to the custom of trying to hit a homer with every swing and, failing, stand on the cushions hopeful for advancement via the hit of a succeeding hickory holder.

Good Base Running

The Cardinals defeated the A's because of superior baserunning. They didn't rally around expecting that one of the associates would hit the ball out of the park.

It was the baserunning of Johnny Martin that demoralized the Mack hirelings in at least two games. The A's accustomed only to the placid style of play in the American League were not prepared for the "wild horse." When Martin and Company went into their gallops, Grove, Earnshaw and the federation of Athletics baseball throwers acted like men hit with discus.

The A's went into the series rated as 'perhaps the greatest team of all time." One has any such notion now. They seem to have reached their peak—and passed it. Any improvement within the ranks of the Yankees, Indians or Senitors and Connie Mack's dream of a fourth straight flag will be shattered into a nightmare.

The series demonstrated quite conclusively that the slug-slug game that has been in vogue for ten years and sponsored wholeheartedly by the A's must yield now to a return of the old-fashioned baseball as represented by the Cards. In this old game, quick thinking, constant alertness and the use of leg power are the chief ingredients for success.

Baseball, like a musical revue now must feature legs.

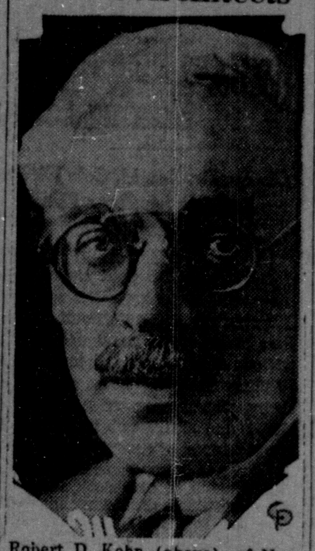
Heads Architects



Robert D. Kohn (above), of New York, president of the American Institute of Architects, has been chosen as general chairman of the provisional organization of 19 groups of the construction industry. More than 100,000 members and billions in capital are represented in the alliance, which is "to cooperate for the common good of the industry and better to serve the nation."

Gateway Keeper

Battles Mellon

Representative Wright Patman (above), Democrat, of Texas, has reiterated his intention of bringing impeachment proceedings against Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon when Congress convenes. Representative Patman cites the law that bans a Secretary of the Treasury from being interested in trade and commerce, either directly or indirectly. Mellon is said by Patman to have violated his oath.

Believed Slain

Mary Livingston (above), employe of Rockford College, Rockford, Ill., whose body was found in the ruins of a Summer cottage on the banks of Rock River, a few miles from Jamesville, Wis. Although a note was found indicating suicide, authorities are investigating clues which point strongly to murder, they say.

Fiery Oratory

Following the arrest of Edith Berkman at Lawrence, Mass. Sophie Melvin (above) was imported by mill strike leaders to replace the "Red Flame," as Miss Berkman is known in Communist circles. Sophie proved an able substitute as this picture shows. Communist agitators are active among the 25,000 woolen mills employes striking as a protest against wage cuts.

FRUIT CRUMB WHIP.

Whip cream and fold in the crumbs of stale cake or cookies until a stiff mixture is formed. Then chop bananas or other fruit and fold into the mixture. Heap this in dessert dishes and put a spoonful of whipped cream on top of each serving. This makes a delicious dessert.

Mysterious Air... Plunges In Flam...

(International News Service)

GALLIPOLIS, O., Oct. 12.—Folks hereabouts rubbed their eyes a trifle sheepishly today as they somewhat doubtfully recounted the uncanny sight of a mysterious airship crumpling in mid-air with a puff of smoke while three men leaped overboard in parachutes.

An all-day search yesterday from ground and air on both the Ohio and West Virginia sides of the Ohio river failed to reveal any trace of the supposedly wrecked blimp or of its three occupants, and the story of the phantom ship developed more and more into a mirage.

"I'll swear I saw something that looked like an airship," said one resident. "It was actin' kinda wobbly—then suddenly down she went. It's the funniest thing that ever happened to me whatever became of that ship."

Were it not for the fact that so many persons of unquestioned integrity saw the mysterious blimp falling in flames, according to Dr. Charles E. Holzer, Gallipolis surgeon and owner of the airport here, the story would be discarded as fantastic, but since several responsible persons reported the strange sight Dr. Holzer said he was convinced that something had happened. But exactly what was a mystery.

State Ready To Advertise Bids On Improvements

Bids On Six State Building Projects Will Be Advertised For Next Wednesday

BUILDING SUM IS $10,000,000

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Oct. 12.—Bids on six state building projects will be advertised for on next Wednesday and every week thereafter on other projects in the program for nearly $10,000,000 voted by the last General Assembly, it was announced today by John L. Hanna, secretary of the department of property and supplies.

The projects are for additions to the State Farm Show Building, Sanatoria, Hospitals, Penal Institutions and to provide more room for the Department of Public Instruction.

Appropriations of $11,916,010 were made by the legislature for land and buildings at various state institutions, but Governor Pinchot vetoed the amounts to the extent of $2,270,000, leaving $9,646,010 available for land and buildings in the present biennium.

Bids sought this month will be on work estimated to cost $200,000; November, $1,000,000; December $2,000,000; January $1,500,000; February $400,000, and March, $300,000.

Jurisdiction Of Court Questioned

R. C. McCaslin Asks That Objection Of B. F. Moorhead To Nomination Be Stricken Off

In the matter of the certification of R. C. McCaslin of New Wilmington as the nominee for county controller by the Republican County Committee, McCaslin, by his attorney, William McElwee, made a motion in court this morning to strike off the objections raised by B. F. Moorhead.

The first reason given was that the objections do not allege sufficient facts to give the court jurisdiction.

In the second reason it it is asserted that the statue provides the matters wherein the court has jurisdiction to review a certificate of nomination, and the objections raised are not within the purview of the statute, therefore the court has no jurisdiction.

Judge Hildebrand granted a rule on B. F. Moorhead to show cause why the objections should not be stricken off. Wednesday, Oct. 14th at 4 p. m. was set as a time when arguments on the motion will be heard.

Phillips Heirs To Get Property

Court Holds That Abandonment Of Willow Grove Schools Voids Deed To Land

In the case of Florence L. Phillips and others, heirs of the late Ephriam Phillips, against the school district of North Beaver township, Judge James A. Chambers handed down an opinion today in favor of the plaintiffs.

The case was one in which Ephriam Phillips, in 1897 deeded two lots to the North Beaver township school board for a schoolhouse to be erected at Willow Grove. The deed, which was made to Frank McGraw and others, then members of the North Beaver school board, provided that if the school should ever be abandoned the land donated by Phillips should revert to his heirs.

In 1924 the schoolhouse was closed and the furnishings removed. Florence Phillips and the other heirs then asked that the land revert to them under the terms of the deed. The school directors refused the request, taking the position that the board had never passed a resolution abandoning the property for school purposes and that it might be used again at some future time.

The court holds that the closing of the school since 1924 is sufficient grounds for voiding the deed and the heirs will get the property.

Resume Auditing Treasury Books At Pittsburgh

Seek To Determine Whether Security Was Posted For Deposited City Funds

NO COMMENT ON AUDIT IS MADE

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 12. — Further investigation of city funds deposited in the closed Franklin Savings and Trust company was started here today, to determine whether security was posted for the funds deposited by City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley.

The move to probe bank deposits by the city treasurer was a second step in the checkup of records of the treasurer's office, started Saturday when City Controller James P. Kerr ordered an independent audit of the treasurer's books.

According to Special Deputy Secretary of Banking G. F. Taylor, Jr., the funds in the Franklin bank "showed no evidence of any security having been given to the city treasurer" to secure them.

Audit Continued

Meantime, fifteen auditors from the local office of a nation-wide accounting system continued their check of the records of the treasurer's office, as ordered by Kerr.

The city controller declined to comment on his audit order other than to say "it is nothing out of the ordinary."

Attaches of the controller's office pointed out he is empowered by law to order such audits and that the regular yearly audit of the treasurer's office last January was postponed because of the probe, then under way, of the city department of supplies.

The city treasurer also declined to comment on the audit ordered by the controller.

Mayor Imposes Heavy Fine After Hearing Today

Charge Dr. Jas. H. Cole Hit Police Officer Over Head During Visit

Dr. James H. Cole, negro, who maintains a dentist office and also his apartment at 18½ South Jefferson street, was arraigned at 10 o'clock this morning before Mayor William H. Gillespie on charges of being the keeper of a disorderly house and also assaulting Officer W. G. McMullen of the city police force, as a result of an occurrence Sunday night about 10:30 o'clock at his office-apartment. Following the hearing, he was fined $100 by Mayor Gillespie with the alternative of 30 days in the county jail. He was making an effort to secure the money for the fine this morning.

The cause of the occurrence last night was similar to that of August 4, when Cole was arrested, together with a white woman, at his apartment, the woman, according to the police, being the same one involved in the episode of last night. She gave the name when apprehended today of Katherine Miller and is said by the police to reside in the Mahoning and Preston avenue district. She is charged with being a visitor in a disorderly house and will be given a hearing today.

According to the statements of Officers W. G. McMullen and Harry Flinner, the arresting officers in the case last night, at the hearing this morning, they received information that a white woman was in the apartment of Dr. Cole. They secured a ladder and went up in turn by means of it to the rear window of the Cole apartment. The blind was down, but there were cracks in it, through which they saw Dr. Cole and the white woman in bed, according to their report.

They then called for the patrol and Officer M. J. Young responded with the machine. Then Officer McMullen went up the ladder a second time to ascertain that no mistake had been made on the previous occasion. As he reached the window, he says, Dr. Cole opened the window and struck him on the head with a sharp instrument, which the police say was later determined to be a chisel, causing quite a wound on the officer's head.

Officers Flinner and M. J. Young rushed to the front of the building and apartment, but Dr. Cole did not come out then. Some time later he came out and was arrested and taken to the city jail, where he was held until the hearing this morning. The girl could not be located in his apartment and the police claim that it was assumed that she had gone into the adjoining apartment of a colored family named Huddle. They could not get the Huddle family to respond.

Officers Allgier, Wallace and Cooper stood guard over the place from that time until this morning, and about 5 o'clock they heard some one getting out a rear window of one or the other of the apartments and when they reached the place she was gone. The woman was apprehended about 8 o'clock this morning as she came from the barbershop of Charles Huddle, 22 South Jefferson street. Police say that she had been there from the time she was heard leaving the apartment.

At the hearing Officer Carl Wallace testified as to the other similar occurrence on August 4, also relative to the part he had in the affair of last night.

Dr. Cole testified that he was alone in his apartment and that he did not know who it was he had hit, because he was of the opinion that some one was trying to break in and he was protecting his place. Katherine Miller testified that she had not been in the apartment of Dr. Cole.

Injunction In Restaurant Case

Result Of Preliminary Finding Is Made Permanent By Order Of Court

Preliminary injunction granted against John Tallas and John and Mary Vati, restraining them from opening a restaurant on Long avenue, within 1500 feet of a restaurant operated by John Dimizas and Mary Staful, was made permanent in an order handed down by Judge R. L. Hildebrand at court this morning.

Tallas and the Vati's had sold a restaurant to Dimizas and Mary Staful for $5300 and had agreed in the bill of sale, not to open another restaurant within 1500 feet of the restaurant which they had sold. Later a restaurant was opened by Mrs. Vati, but at the hearing Tallas and John Vati claimed that they were not operating it. Evidence showed that they were around the place considerable of the time. In the opinion they are restrained from operating or furnishing any money for the operation of a restaurant.

Old Fire Truck Makes Run On 20th Birthday

A marvel since its purchase Oct. 11, 1911 as the first piece of motorized fire apparatus in the city—and Lawrence county too, if you wish—central fire station's sputtering Knox fire pumper celebrated its 20th year of service yesterday by making a run to Grant and Sampson street, an hour after its birthday.

Today firemen wondered how much longer the triple combination pumper would continue in service until the city abandons it in favor of a more modern truck.

It was purchased through Ed Hileman one of the city's earliest auto dealers, and its first driver was the late Capt. Alec Hartman.

The run on its 20th birthday was made after a false alarm had been received from the Box 62, shortly after 1 a. m. Sunday. It carried Fireman Norman Minner, driver and Capt. Lieut. D. W. Byers.

The disadvantage in making a better mouse trap is that the cheering soon stops if you can't improve it.

City Agrees To Pay Attorneys

Will Pay Attorney's Witness Fees Rather Than Pay Big Damages

When council convened in city hall today councilmen, upon the recommendation of Solicitor Robert White voted payments of $100, each to Attorneys Charles R. Davis and Roy Mercer and witness fees amounting to $15, to five witnesses. The payments came as the result of the city's ordinance, now repealed, to widen East Washington stree near Florence avenue.

Under a state law, the city is liable for payment for any proceedin for land taken or damaged afte the ordinance is repealed, accordin to Solicitor White. The paymen includes attorneys fees.

Relative to the payment of wit ness fees, council agreed to pay $ to each of the five witness. A pric of $15 each had been asked. Th state law does not fix the witnes fees in such a proceedure.

The city abandoned the propose widening on account of the hig damages set by the viewers.
